Say Turks Offered to Enter War

At Annual Meet

New National Policy Urged By Tory Chief

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—John Bracken, national Progressive Conservative leader, last night called for a new national policy based on a system of rewards and profits but unfettered by restrictions of the past.

Speaking at a dinner attended by delegates to the annual meeting of the Dominion Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Bracken said the major problem of today was one of distribution rather than production.

He said the answer he presented to this problem was the "use of the capitalistic system as the instrumentality whereby we can give the people the full benefit of all they are capable of producing and desire to use."

CONVINCE PEOPLE

The job faced by the Progressive Conservative Party was to convince the people of Canada that the party was a new one which had kept all that was worth saving from the past and discarded all that was obsolete and useless.

Mr. Bracken's recommendations for a national policy to fit present day needs included these points:

"We must seek prosperity today by the full development of whatever resources we desire and can use or trade for others."

"We must not forget that work fairly rewarded is still the best way to provide security."

"With the increased risks of modern days society must find ways of assuring security to the sick, the injured, the unemployed, the needy and the aged."

SEEK TRUE UNITY

Beyond this there must be an effort to regain true unity.

"Labor must no longer feel neglected, agriculture forgotten, Quebec deceived, Ontario overlooked or the geographical extremities of Canada overlooked," he said.

Mr. Bracken said the decision on when an election will be held rested with one "whose temper is rather uncertain these days and whose moods are quite unpredictable."

"Unfortunately the prime minister is apt to regard his power to call an election or prolong the life of the government as a convenient instrument with which to confound his political opponents.

"Neither his temper nor his discretion, however, are being improved by his constant examination of the political barometer."

CO-OPERATION NEEDED

He said "the state must co-operate with its population to assure each member of it the maximum of essential needs and whatever additional our total production makes possible; and by co-operative insurance measures in the nature of social welfare projects we must see that fear of want never again darkens the door of the man or woman who is willing to carry his or her weight in the community."

Mr. Bracken said his visits to various parts of Canada had given him conviction the party was "moving steadily along the road to victory."

"We have begun to deserve the public confidence and because of that we are winning an increasing measure of public support."

FEEL "FRUSTRATED"

The people of Canada now were suffering from a feeling of "immense frustration." They wanted neither the tyranny of reactionary capitalism or of socialism; but rather economic security accompanied by political and economic freedom.

Dealing with the problem of distribution, Mr. Bracken said he believed there was "a kernel of truth" in arguments advanced by Social Credit supporters. There had been much error in attempts to get the principle recognized in Alberta.

"But the problem ought not to be side-stepped because someone fumbled in a first attempt at solution," he added.

"My view is that a very definite bottleneck exists in the present set-up and that we must put our best brains to work to discover how to remove it, and that we must approach the problem with minds not closed by the circumstances of past environment nor yet so unsophisticated that each new idea points the way to a millenium.

"We shall probably find the answer in a better distribution of employment and in higher wages rather than in gifts to the people; we must have a new and up-to-date national policy made to fit the conditions of today."

PREPARE FOR ELECTION

Peter MacArthur of Howick, Que., president of the association, asked for a tightening up of organizational activity in preparation for an election "so that we may see that Mr. Bracken maintains the unbeaten record he established in Manitoba."

Big U.S. Planes Attack Target In Berlin Area

By W. W. HERCHER

LONDON, March 4 — (CP) — United States army headquarters announced today that during an attack by American heavy bombers on eastern Germany "one formation reported attacking a target in the Berlin district."

It was the first time that American four-engined planes had penetrated to Berlin, a frequent target of smashing night raids by R.A.F. bomber command, including the R.C.A.F. bomber group.

The headquarters announcement telling of the attack said:

"Formations of heavy bombers today attacked targets in eastern Germany.

"One formation reported attacking a target in the Berlin district.

"The flight was made through difficult flying conditions with clouds often as high as 30,000 feet."

CLAIM CITY MISSED

Earlier a German broadcast by the propaganda agency, International Information Bureau, said bombs had showered Berlin, but D.N.B., the Nazi news agency, claimed not a single explosive fell on Berlin itself. This confusion is

"Free Japan" Move Starts in North China Territory

CHUNGKING, March 4.—(AP)—Establishment of a "Free Japan movement" in the Communist-controlled territory of North China, apparently composed of a few Japanese prisoners and intellectuals opposing the Tojo regime in Tokyo, was reported today in the New China News Agency, Chungking's Communist newspaper. The movement was believed in Chungking to be similar to the Free German committee started in Moscow by the Russians.

Temperature Drops To 17 Below Zero

Edmonton temperature dropped steadily overnight reaching 17 below zero before morning. At 8:30 a.m. Saturday the thermometer still registered 17 below, and the city was enveloped in fog. Meteorological officials also reported that another five-tenths of an inch of snow fell in the city Friday.

Forecast for the week-end according to weather officials is "partly cloudy and continuing cold."

U.S. Ace Missing

LONDON, March 4.—(CP)—Maj. Walter Carl Beckham, the leading American fighter ace in the European theatre of operations, was officially listed last night as missing in action. The 27-year-old pilot from De Funiak Springs, Fla., had 18 victories to his credit.

Advice to Army of Occupation: How to Deal With Occupied Germany

The English have met with German aversion for the past fifty years; the Americans for twenty. In former times, Germany honored the English as cousins who were superior in practical matters, but considered them intellectually inferior. Goethe, who understood them better, said, "Every Englishman has Shakespeare as an ancestor and the ocean at his feet." Bismarck also, though he was not fond of the English, greatly respected them and kept to his maxim: "Never against England!"

British Seize Jap Positions

NEW DELHI, March 4.—(AP)—British troops captured Japanese positions north and northeast of Buthedaung in their drive on Akyab, 50 miles to the south, in Burma yesterday and held them against strong counter-attacks, today's Allied southeast Asia communique announced.

West African troops moving down the Kaladin valley east of the Mayu range in a southward drive which has out-flanked Buthedaung, were attacking the town of Apaukwa and crushed most of the Japanese positions there.

Two groups of Japanese forces trapped east of Ngakyedauk Pass in the Mayu range attempted to break through the Allied lines yesterday and fell back southward. One of the groups was driven back in hard fighting and the other is being followed up and harassed, with half of its original numbers killed.

Eight Men of U.S. Plane Crew Saved

LONDON, March 4. — (CP) — Eight members of an 11-man United States bomber crew have been saved by the British air-sea rescue service after being adrift 20 hours in open dinghies in the Bay of Biscay, when their bomber was shot down by two German Junkers 88's, it was disclosed today. Three of the crew died.

Moscow-Leningrad Railway Is Restored

MOSCOW, March 4.—(AP)—The Moscow-Leningrad railway now has been restored and the first freight train already has made the journey between the two cities, it was announced today. Red Army advances south of Leningrad cleared the Germans from the railway several weeks ago.

As the English were not direct neighbors of the Germans and had not been at war with them for a long time, there seemed no reason for Germany not to remain friends with England. But when, under Wilhelm II, the dream of German World Dominion was reborn, England appeared as the great obstacle in Germany's path to success.

The Americans lost the great popularity they had enjoyed in Germany only after World War I, when they loaned money to the Germans. To be able not to hate his creditor, a debtor must possess more self-assurance than the Germans have. After the Germans had got several billion dollars from Wall Street, hate of America took hold of them. Also, they now thought that Wilson had betrayed them: they invented the saga that Wilson's fourteen points had lured them to lay down their arms and that they had become victims of a fraud.

FIND MORE HATE

When the Allied armies enter and occupy beaten Germany, they will find more hate for them than for the French. France was beaten, and even if it does rise again, it will do so with the help of the Anglo-Saxons.

The British and American armies somehow have been made ludicrous

If Parents Object

Plan to Exempt Students From Saluting Flag

Other than to "stand silently and at attention," school pupils whose parents object to flag-saluting exercises on religious grounds are exempted from taking part in such exercises, under terms of a bill amending the School act, brought into the legislature Friday by Hon. Solon E. Low, minister of education. The bill was given first reading.

The bill requires that the parent or guardian of a pupil must give the school principal a written statement declaring that he is a member of a religious organization whose tenets forbid or are opposed to its members individually saluting the flag.

GRANT EXEMPTION

In such cases, the new legislation says the pupil concerned shall not be required to participate in saluting the flag, further than by coming to attention and remain standing silently at attention during the exercise.

Saluting the flag was the subject of dispute at several Alberta points in the last year, when children re-

Mines Stay Open

Coal Operators Urge Dominion Continue Help

With Edmonton district coal operators still without definite proposals from the Dominion government that will permit successful operation of mines if government subsidies are discontinued, Ottawa has been urged to continue payment of subsidies until an acceptable plan for mine maintenance is drawn up.

L. E. Drummond, secretary-manager of the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines, speaking Saturday for a committee representing coal operators, chamber of commerce of mines and other business men, said:

"Coal operators here not having received assurance of any revised policy which will maintain the mines in operation and safeguard public welfare, the committee, entrusted with finding a solution has therefore wired Ottawa urging that the subsidy granted to date by the federal government be continued until an alternative plan for mine operations is presented."

Further developments are expected next week.

Beef Sent to U.K. Building Market

Agriculture Minister Gardiner, speaking on his estimates in the Commons Friday, said Canada may need a market for 300,000 head of cattle annually after the war, and added that steps to British are helping to build that market.

Several speakers participated in the debate. They included Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (PC—South), G. G. Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), and Harry Leader (L—Portage la Prairie).

Further discussion centred around irrigation projects for Alberta and condemnation insurance deductions on livestock, with several private members expressing their views.

Government Is Not Likely To Change Aviation Policy

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 4.—The Canadian government has no intention of abandoning its civil aviation policy which assigns to Trans-Canada Airlines the main trunk lines inside Canada and as well Canada's share in international flying. This will likely be the gist of a statement to be made shortly in parliament by Hon. C. D. Howe, who was questioned on aviation policy last Thursday.

Mr. Howe said he would make a statement.

At the same time, fresh discussions with British and American authorities on post-war aviation policies are imminent, it is learned. A number of recent developments indicate that preliminary agreement among Canada, United States and Britain on international flying in the future, may be possible.

The question of whether any change will be made in Canadian aviation policy, which Prime Minister King laid down in parliament last year, has been raised in some

Men Return

City Veterans Don't Believe War Is "Over"

The German soldier is tough but the Canadian will prove his master. Men from the fighting fronts, however, don't think the war is "over".

Those were some of the impressions gained after a short talk with CSM. Edward George Greene, of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, who arrived in Edmonton Friday night in a group of Canadian Army service men returning from overseas.

HIT BY SHRAPNEL

CSM. Greene, who left here with the regiment in the fall of 1939, stopped a piece of enemy shrapnel during the hard fighting for Sicily.

The Loyal Edmonton Regiment was in fine fettle when Greene was blighted out.

"There have been a lot of casualties since I left," he observed regretfully.

CSM. Greene spent time in four North Africa hospitals before being sent to England.

Ontario Planning Health Services

TORONTO, March 4—(CP)—The Drew government plans to introduce a measure in the Ontario legislature, "probably next week," to establish a contributory health services plan, it was announced yesterday by Hon. Dr. R. P. Vivian, minister of health.

Dr. Vivian issued a statement saying that the government will introduce a bill called "The Ontario Municipal Health Services Act," which will "provide for an improved type of medical care, available to all on a basis satisfactory to the medical and allied professions, at a cost within the means of everyone and by a method of payment that will ease the financial burden in the cost of sickness."

He declined to discuss details of the plan until its introduction in the house, but the statement did say that "The type of service to be rendered will be produced with the aid of the Ontario Medical Association, the Ontario Hospitals' Association and other groups that represent the organized personnel rendering services in the treatment of illness."

Japanese Schools Have Been Turned Into War Plants

MOSCOW, March 4. — (AP) — Tass, Soviet news agency, said in a dispatch from Tokyo today the Japanese government has mobilized school children and turned school buildings into war plants. Buildings constructed of flimsy material have been evacuated, the dispatch said, and where possible government departments have been moved from congested areas.

CBC Cannot Get Shortwave Needs

Wanted 500 Tanks, 300 Planes to Join Allies Against Nazis

By LEON KAY
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

ANKARA, March 4.—Authoritative Turkish sources said yesterday that Turkey asked the Allies at the Cairo conference for 500 tanks and 300 planes as the sole condition of her entry into the war, and that failure to deliver them is the only reason the Turks are not now fighting.

EXCLUSIVE

Turkey has maintained a consistent policy throughout the war, and her attitude remains unchanged, though she has been subjected to considerable unofficial pressure, responsible quarters reported.

They said the Turks are convinced that the present deadlock over the British delivery of war materials to Turkey is surmountable.

The non-delivery of the requested tanks and planes is the immediate cause of the deadlock, informants said, adding that Turkey considered such a price small for throwing in her lot with the Allies.

REQUEST AT CAIRO

The request was made at the Cairo conference among President Ismet Inonu, Prime Minister Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt, the authoritative sources reported.

At that time Turkey was said to have informed Britain that she would enter the war actively when the deliveries of the 500 tanks and 300 planes were made, regardless of other requests for materials which, if delay were unavoidable, could be delivered after the war.

If Turkey enters the war at all, informants said, she wants to do so on an offensive—not defensive—basis.

They added that British hesitance on Turkish bases from which the Royal Air Force could operate was tantamount to offering Turkey an "unconditional condition" which Turkey feels should not be the attitude of an ally.

Seek Retirement Of Older Judges

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, March 4.—Notice of intention to introduce a bill designed to encourage the retirement of superior court judges in Canada at the age of 70 years has been given by S. H. Knowles, (C.C.F.—Winnipeg South Centre). The bill may reach first reading on Monday. If enacted it would affect judges of the court of appeal and the King's bench court in Manitoba and corresponding courts in other provinces.

Mr. Knowles had his bill drafted along lines of a bill introduced by the Bennett government in 1932, and passed by the house at that time. The Senate refused to pass it. Under the British North America Act superior court judges are appointed by the federal government for life.

Mr. Knowles will propose that at the age of 70, all judges will automatically receive only the amount of superannuation to which they are entitled. That provision, he suggests, will encourage judges to retire. To provide directly that judges retire at specified age would require an amendment to the B.N. A. Act. The 1933 bill set the retiring age at 75 years.

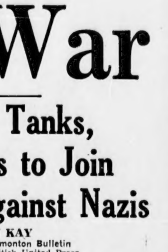
Company Convicted On Fraud Charge

CALGARY, March 4.—(CP)—Charged with defrauding the Dominion government out of nearly $3,000 in employees' income taxes, the Alberta Drilling and Development Company, Ltd., pleaded guilty before Magistrate D. C. Sinclair in city police court Friday and was remanded until March 24 for sentence.

Information filed by Harold W. Riley, Jr., who appeared in behalf of the crown, stated that between Sept. 15, 1942, and Jan. 28, 1944, the company had deducted from its employees' salaries the sum of $3,415.00 as required under the Income Tax Act but had turned over less than $700 to the government.

In admitting the charge in behalf of W. McKinnon, manager, S. H. Adams, K.C., appearing for the company, asked for a remand of three weeks to enable his client to raise funds for payment of the $2,791.90 still owing to the government.

Promoted



Maj. H. D. P. Tighe, M.C., of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, whose promotion to that rank was announced Saturday by national defence headquarters. He won the Military Cross for conspicuous gallantry in the capture of Leonforte, Sicily, last July. His mother, Mrs. R. D. Tighe, lives at 8 St. George's Crescent. Lt. S. R. Halton, whose wife lives at 11101 83 avenue, has been promoted to the rank of captain. Appointed lieutenants were Sgt. Harry McDonald of 12893 Fort Road, and Bdr. Gustave D. Bendiksen of Ryley, both serving with the Royal Canadian Artillery. Lt. McDonald who enlisted in the autumn of 1939 was a mechanic in civilian life. Lt. Bendiksen, also a mechanic, enlisted in the autumn of 1939.

Buchalter Loses Legal Manoeuvre

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP) —The United States supreme court rejected today the last-minute legal manoeuvre by counsel for Louis (Lepke) Buchalter to save the one-time chief of Murder, Inc., from execution tonight.

The court announced its decision about 1½ hours after Lepke's attorney filed a petition for a writ of certiorari, asking it to review the denial by lower courts of an application for a writ of habeas corpus for the New York gangster.

In an unusual procedure, the petition was presented immediately before the justices. Ordinarily petitions are not considered until several weeks after filing.

with expectancy of impending great happenings, he said.

Edmonton looks mighty good to CSM. Greene.

Another man who was looking over the old home town for the first time since 1940 was Pte. L. J. Bertram of 11436 78 street.

GREETED BY CHILDREN

The highlight of Pte. Bertram's homecoming was the greeting from his two small children, Marjorie, three, who saw her daddy for the first time, and Billy, five, who steadfastly maintained he knew daddy as soon as he clapped eyes on him.

Little Marjorie was withholding final judgment on daddy until she "gets to know him better."

Pte. Bertram was hit by a piece of shrapnel during an air raid in Britain.

A majority of those returning Friday were "category" men, from service in Britain.

Pte D. Dougan, first member of The Loyal Edmonton regiment to be wounded in Sicily, who returned here about three weeks' ago, was on hand to greet returning buddies from the old regiment.

The following Edmontonians were scheduled to return on Friday's train:

C.S.M. Greene, L. J. Bertram, W. L. Stewart, J. Stewart, T. Logan, J. Ground and A. T. Gagnon.

The following are from district points:

C. Alberte, Fori Kent; V. Loyie, Canyon Creek; J. Strzynadka, Wildingdon; G. Davis, Ranfurly; L. Bond, Pigeon Lake; Lloyd Beauvais-lon; Hansen, Manville; Sketchley, Dawson Creek; Daniels, St. Paul, and Kisch, Botha.

MORE EXPECTED

Another large group of veterans from overseas was scheduled to arrive in Edmonton Saturday and Sunday.

Organizations and individuals comprising the welcoming home committee met Friday's train. Represented were: Canadian Legion War Services, Legion Women's Auxiliary and Women's auxiliaries of other Edmonton service units, Edmonton branch of the Canadian Red Cross, the Salvation Army War Services and many individuals, including Lt. Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D.

fused to take a part in the ceremony on their parents' instruction. Cases were reported in Edmonton, and others in the Lethbridge area. Three Edmonton pupils were suspended from classes as a result of such refusal, and are still under this suspension.

The proposed legislation provides: "In any case where the board (school board) directs that the flag shall be saluted, this exercise shall be conducted in such manner as the board may prescribe.

"Provided however that any pupil whose parent or guardian presents to the principal of the school a written statement setting forth that he or she is a member of a religious organization whose tenets forbid or are opposed to its members individually saluting the flag, shall not be required to participate in the saluting of the flag when prescribed by the board further than to come to attention and to remain standing silently and attention while the salute is being given in the manner prescribed."

PRESENT REGULATIONS

The section of the School Act the proposed change will replace reads as follows: "In any case where the board directs that the flag shall be saluted, this patriotic exercise may be conducted in the following manner:

The teacher and the pupils shall stand facing the flag and upon the command of the teacher, the pupil, or any other pupil who may be designated by the teacher for this purpose, the teacher and pupils shall come to attention and shall remain standing silently and at attention while the teacher, junior pupil, or other designated pupil, salutes the flag."

While the house was dealing with legislation Friday, eight bills passed through third reading stage, and are now ready for royal assent.

Soviet Troops Closing Trap Around Pskov

By HARRISON SALISBURY
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright 1944, by British United Press

MOSCOW, March 4. — Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's forces completed three-quarters encirclement of Pskov, Nazi anchor in Latvia and southern Estonia, today and virtually halted all traffic over the next to the last escape railroad out of the strategic junction.

Extending their 22-mile siege arc to within seven miles south of Pskov, the Russians paralyzed movement along the Pskov-Warsaw trunk railroad, five miles to the west, and left the threatened garrison only the secondary line west to Riga over which to move troops and supplies.

Govorov's men hurdled the last water barrier east of Pskov in a frontal attack that led to the capture of Bolshoye Pomkino, on the west bank of the Kep river only five miles from the centre of Pskov.

CAPTURE MARKOVO

The Russians also seized Markovo, eight miles northwest of Pskov, in relentlessly increasing the northwest, north, northeast, east, southeast and south. The six-way railway and highway junction now was under artillery fire from pressure against the garrison from all six directions.

More than 800 Germans were killed in fighting around Pskov yesterday.

Big U.S. Planes Attack Target In Berlin Area

Berlin broadcasts apparently was the result of hair-splitting as to Berlin's boundaries.

The German broadcast said the raid on the German capital was a repetition of an attack yesterday which failed. U.S. headquarters announced yesterday, however, only that American fighter planes had made an offensive sweep over Berlin and made no reference to bombers.

"This time the attack was flown from a westerly direction only a small part of the American formation—which was strongly escorted by fighters—reached Berlin," the broadcast claimed.

FIRST OPPORTUNITY

Berlin has been a goal for American fliers ever since they began operations in the European theatre but if the German reports were true this was the first time they had an opportunity to take part in the destruction of the capital begun—almost finished—by the R.A.F.

The daylight operation against the German capital had awaited development of long-range fighters necessary to protect the bombers along the heavily-defended course to the target, at least 575 miles from British bases.

The bombers plowed through bitterly cold skies at temperatures as low as 45 degrees below zero in their daylight blow at the Reich.

"It was plenty cold," reported one pilot. "The supercharger and the bailturret tailgun froze up."

The bombers thundering into Germany for the third straight day were powerfully escorted by fighters.

GREAT PROCESSION

They crossed the channel in a tremendous procession and headed toward Germany in clear, cold weather.

"The whole 8th Air Force was up there today," declared Sgt. William Deblasio, of Pittsburgh, one of the first crewmen to return.

The Americans approached Reich territory under a cover of clouds and were engaged in fierce air combats going in and leaving the targets, Berlin said.

The third straight day of almost continuous Allied aerial thrusts was marked by the departure of one of the greatest armadas of bombers ever seen crossing the Strait of Dover.

RADIOS OFF AIR

Almost immediately the Hilversum radio left the air—the usual sign that raiders are driving deep into Reich territory—as the great American and Allied formations dotted the bright blue sky for miles along the channel.

An early announcement on today's activities said R.A.F., Dominion and Allied medium and fighter bombers struck at military objectives in northern France again without a loss.

Later reports on yesterday's daylight operations disclosed also that both British and American tactical air forces sent hundreds of medium and light aircraft into northern France without loss, striking at four French airfields among other objectives. These forays, together with last night's R.A.F. operations over Berlin, Western Germany and enemy waters, all were made without loss.

When Germany Is Defeated

—By Emil Ludwig—

to the Germans in general. The Germans have been taught that the British and Americans have never even won a battle. "The English are no soldiers". This is what we in Germany were told forty years ago, and what our fathers were taught before us. It is much easier for the Germans to acknowledge the Russian army as a formidable rival.

Another reason for the German dislike of the Anglo-Saxons is the exaggerated belief in their will to power, a German competition in the world market.

DIVISION OF GERMANY

The whole German nation will be thoroughly filled with hatred when the victorious Allies enter their country. In this situation, there is one thing the occupants must avoid. That is an attempt at reconciliation. They will lose the game if they try to behave according to their natural sympathizings.

It seems that a certain plan, already exists to divide occupied Germany into three zones, giving the area east of the Elbe to Russia for administration, the middle country (from Hamburg to Saxony) to the British, and the southern and western parts to America.

This division seems to correspond best with the psychology of the German tribes. The Prussians are much too rigorous and stiff to comply with the American "keep smiling" philosophy, which, however, will appeal to the Rhinelanders. And these, on the other hand, are too agile and emotional to agree with a certain stiffness belonging to the British. The Russians will find many similarities to their own customs and character among the Prussians, who have a big percentage of Slavic blood deriving from the Wends, Obotrites and other Slavic tribes.

The British will find a race and a language very similar to their own in the "Plattdeutsch" (low German) of the northwestern plains. Hamburg and Bremen, or as much of them as still exists, resemble English seaports in their way of life, and it was not by mere chance that, in 1919, Hamburg proposed to be united to England. In the south of the Rhine, too, the British would have the Saxons, the very race of their forefathers.

HATRED DIFFERS

Though, on the side of the vanquished, the aversion to the victors is a general one, the degree of hatred differs in the different tribes and parts of the country.

The feelings on the side of the victors are also very different. In America, which has experienced no bombings and few wartime restrictions, there is no real hatred of Germany. Besides, the American is by nature more expansive than the Englishman, who is reticent with foreigners. In the case of the Germans, the English justly feel that their first were cheated and then forced to terrible sacrifices. For this reason, the British will be the ones to administer strict judgments in Germany.

For practical use, I add:

Fourteen Rules for the American Occupation Officer:

1—You are entering Germany, not as a liberator but as a victor. You are supposed to govern the country, and you will not be regarded as a master unless you are strict and aloof.

2—Never give way. Anything that is granted as a favor will be regarded by the German as his right and he will subsequently demand twice as much. He thinks fair play is cowardice.

3—Always speak English when dealing officially with the Germans. They understand English, or they will find friends who do. As soon as you speak Germans you will not be regarded as a boss.

4—Do not keep smiling. Never offer a cigarette to a visitor whom you do not know well. Nor offer him your hand. The Germans will respect you more as they see in you a successor to Hitler, who never offered them his hand.

5—Always wear a uniform, never civilian clothes. A uniform is the symbol of authority to the Germans, who, for three hundred years, have been governed by soldiers. In hotels, restaurants and theatres, always insist on having the best rooms and seats. Pay the full price and spend as much money as you can. Always give high tips.

6—Be polite to women, but never be cordial, as you are in your country. Do not flirt with them. They would think it their duty to betray you to their countrymen.

7—Give visible preference to any German who has been in a concentration camp or who in any way opposed the Nazis and suffered under them. To him you may offer a cigarette, especially in the presence of any German of the other kind—a former Nazi or a German who has not been in a concentration camp. This will make an impression and will be talked about.

8—In public, give preference to workmen. You may even talk German with them. They will be surprised by and grateful for any sign of friendliness, as they have suffered suppression.

9—If you are in need of something—a train, a car, or a new lamp —and you are told there is none to be had, answer, with an appropriate look: "It has to be here at six o'clock." It will be there, and you will have gained in authority.

10—Make everyone entering your service give you an account of his former doings under the Nazis, also an account of what he did and thought under the Republic. Many Germans who claim to be anti-Nazi today were revengists under the Republic and enthusiastically helped in secret rearmament. Even most of the Socialists were super-nationalistic. Only those who can prove their European and international leanings during the Republic can be counted on to co-operate with the Occupation Army.

11—Be on your guard against professors who quote English literature and history. A German professor is bound to be more arrogant than learned. The fact that he has taught race theories for ten years is not as criminal as his revenge sermons at the time of the Republic.

12—It will be of use to you to get acquainted with a dozen telling maxims and quotations from Goethe and Schiller. You will then learn these by heart. Then, you will be able now and then to make use of them in your English conversation. This will be very effective, and more impressive than quoting ideas from your American classics.

13—Forget the American habit of meeting everyone in an easy way. Distrust everybody who has given you no proof of his honesty. Then, after some weeks, the Germans will realize that, under your government, personality and character count higher than military grades.

14—Never forget that you are in enemy country—even when all the secret arms and bombs have been destroyed. Hate and the will for revenge will live on in the hearts of German adults after this war as after the last one. The only way to get along with the Germans is to make them respect you—to make them feel the hand of the master.

Government Not Likely to Switch Aviation Policy

dian Pacific Air Lines in recent publications in Ottawa for air line licenses which, added together, would virtually compose a second coast to coast trunk line in competition with T.C.A. These applications have been made to the civil aviation committee of the board of transport commissioners.

APPLY TO WASHINGTON

Canadian Pacific Air Lines, it is learned, have also made applications for licenses to operate lines entering the United States, filing with the civil bureau of aeronautics in Washington. The action has been taken on the assumption the Canadian government will change its policy to allow C.P.A. and possibly other private air line companies to operate international services.

In Montreal ; settlement, L. B. Unwin, president of C.P.A., said the company's applications made in Ottawa included routes that could be developed within limits of the government's "present" policy. Inquiries today indicated that no change has occurred in government policy on aviation to warrant describing the policy Mr. King laid down last year merely as an interim policy.

INTERNATIONAL FRONT

On the international front the British aviation mission led by Lord Beaverbrook in Washington, it is known, has been at least a partial failure. But further discussions will be commenced shortly. The British government's position, as stated this week in London by Captain H. H. Balfour, under secretary for air, who recently visited Ottawa, favors full international collaboration. Another British development, disclosed in this week's debate on air estimates in the British parliament, has been emergence of the Labor party as advocate of full international collaboration of trunk air routes around the world. The Churchill government, it is thought, is not prepared to go this far. Canada, too, has not come out, as Australia and New Zealand have, for operation of trunk lines by an international agency.

But all are agreed that an international organization to administer air regulations is necessary. The steps to create such a body may be taken shortly. This will be far short of an international aviation body, but it will be a step towards solution of world aviation problem.

OTTAWA, March 4.—Applications for licenses to operate additional air routes in Canada have been filed with the minister of civil aviation and the Board of Transport Commissioners by Canadian Pacific Air Lines.

These proposed routes will provide local and connecting air services to a large number of important Canadian communities not presently served by air transport as indicated by the points listed in the following applications:

LINK MANY POINTS

Montreal to Cornwall, Brockville, Gananoque, Kingston, Belleville, Trenton, Peterborough, Lindsay, Oshawa, Toronto.

Toronto to Hamilton, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Fort Erie, Welland, St. Thomas, Chatham, Windsor, Sarnia, London, Woodstock, Galt, Brantford, Paris, Stratford, Waterloo, Kitchener, Guelph.

Montreal to Ottawa, Rouyn, Noranda; Toronto to Sudbury, North Bay, Haileybury, Kirkland Lake, Timmins, Porquis Junction, Rouyn, Noranda; Sydney to New Glasgow, Truro, Halifax, Kentville, Yarmouth, Saint John, Fredicton, Edmundson, Mont Joli, Rimouski.

Halifax to Saint John, Sioux Lookout to Fort William-Port Arthur; Winnipeg to The Pas, North Battleford to Vermilion, Edmonton; Port Alice to Prince Rupert.

The last two applications are in the form of extensions: that from Port Alice to Prince Rupert being an extension of the existing Vancouver - Port Alice service, and the extension from North Battleford to Edmonton being a continuation of the existing service operated by C.P.A. between Regina-Saskatoon-Prince Albert-North Battleford.

In Montreal, President L. B. Unwin of Canadian Pacific Air Lines, commenting on the applications, stated that C.P.A. has had under study for some time a number of new air routes which could be developed, even within the limits imposed by government announcement of an interim policy, and which would provide air transportation in sections of Canada where either no air service exists or existing services do not provide for local needs.

WITHHELD BY WAR

Formal applications for licenses have been withheld up to the present because of wartime conditions and because both in Canada and the United States there has been reluctance on the part of the regulatory authorities to deal with such applications before the end of the war.

In Canada, however, within recent weeks there have been several press announcements of the intentions of other interests to submit applications for licenses, and we have thought it proper to file with the authorities evidence of the C.P.A.'s willingness and desire to provide service in a number of areas where the necessity for air service is most urgent.

In the United States the Civil Aeronautics Board has recently announced its intention of hearing applications from a number of U.S. air lines to provide international air services between points in the United States and Canada, although until this announcement was made their policy had been to postpone consideration until hostilities had ceased. In this field also there is room for legitimate expansion by Canadian carriers whenever the civil aviation policy of our government permits of the claims of Canadian operators being advanced.

GO HAND-IN-HAND

It is obvious that the expansion of Canadian aviation and the re-employment of R.C.A.F. personnel should go hand-in-hand. A large number of airmen released from the air force will desire to engage in civil air operations, and unless there is to be a wholly unnecessary lag between their release from active service and their re-employment, it is desirable that routes should be allocated to responsible parties capable of developing them, and every possible preparation made for commencing new services at the earliest date permitted by the successful prosecution of the war.

The pioneer adventures in air transport were undertaken by enterprising individuals, many of whom are now officers of Canadian Pacific Air Lines. The Canadian Pacific has been able to put behind their efforts the necessary financial support, and the great assets of experience in transportation and world-wide connections in this field.

For these reasons, the company is fully equipped to play a major part in the development of Canadian air transport, by co-ordinating this new form of service with the highly developed operations in other fields of transport in which it has had such long experience and success.

Allies Break New Attacks In Beachhead

By C. R. CUNNINGHAM
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright 1944, by British United Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, March 4. — Allied forces have broken further German attacks on the Anzio beachhead, two of them against the British front. It was disclosed today, but with the third major enemy attempt to drive the Allied forces into the sea smashed by co-ordinated ground and air forces, activity generally had slackened off.

The German thrusts, local in character, were directed against the Allied line south and southwest of Aprilia and collapsed against British infantry resistance and concentrated artillery fire.

Meanwhile, fighting flared up on the British Eighth Army sector, Canadian troops captured an enemy machine gun delivery in the Crecchio area and Indian units ambushed a German force near Orsogna. Still another clash occurred around Fallascoso where the Nazis suffered severe casualties and some prisoners were taken.

QUIET AT CASSINO

The main Fifth Army front was quiet with the usual patrolling increased somewhat by clearing weather which revealed most of Wednesday, followed latterly by showers which flooded some of the rivers.

In the Germans' third major attack on the beachhead between Tuesday and Thursday, it now must be revealed that the enemy used at least five divisions.

(Radio Rome, controlled by the Germans, reported last night that "one of the most violent and furious artillery battles ever fought on Italian territory" was taking place on the beachhead with "thousands of cannon of all calibres spitting fire in a limited space, churning up the ground yard by yard.")

Set Ceilings

OTTAWA, March 4 — (CP) — The Prices Board has announced establishment of ceiling prices for kippered snacks packed in five-ounce cans and smoked sardines packed in vegetable oil in quarter-pound flat tins.

Claim 40 Killed In Raid on Rome

BERNE, March 4.—(AP) — The Nazi-controlled Rome radio claimed last night 40 persons were killed and 200 wounded in an Allied air raid on the Italian capital yesterday during which bombs fell on Vatican City and on the Protestant cemetery where Keats and Shelley are buried. The radio said no serious damage was caused by the bombs which fell in Vatican City but that several stained glass windows in St. Peter's Basilica were shattered.

As U.S. Army Battled Blizzard on Historic Rail Line

For more than two weeks recently men of the U.S. Army fought with might and main to get traffic moving again on the White Pass and Yukon narrow-gauge rail line between Whitehorse and Skagway. One train was practically buried in a snow slide and drifts following one of the worst blizzards in years. Train furnishings were burned by passengers and relief food supplies were brought by a tractor train. Above are scenes of the blockade. "She'll be comin' round the mountain if she comes", might well be the caption for the picture at the top. The little locomotive is belching great clouds of smoke from the stack as it drags its train on to the trestle in storied White Pass. The rest of the train is obscured by swirling snow and steam. In the centre soldier-railroaders are attempting to clear the line after a derailment, caused by too strenuous bucking of drifts by rotary plows. At the bottom is one of the little narrow gauge locomotives after a heavy bout with drifts and snow slides.

Passengers Endangered

Worst Blizzard In Years

"Smothers" Narrow Line

Passengers burned train furnishings to keep from freezing to death, and escaped starvation by subsisting on a meagre supply of sandwiches, when one of the worst blizzards in years, combined with a rampaging snow slide recently "smothered" a whole train on the U.S. Army-operated White Pass and Yukon Railway.

Traffic was completely tied up for many days during the storm on the storied narrow-gauge rail line that connects the port of Skagway in Southeastern Alaska with Whitehorse in the Yukon Territory.

A tractor train had to go to the rescue of the marooned train that had also suffered derailment.

The railway is one of the supply lines on which the Northwest Service Command of the U.S. Army has depended for the building and maintenance of the Alaska Highway and the Canol pipe line.

This winter, although low temperatures were not the continuous threat of 40, 50 and even 60 below of the winter of 1942-43, has been marked by heavy snowfall.

The 770th Railway Battalion has written additional history this year in the handling of freight over this railroad. Brig. Gen. Ludson D. Worsham of Evansville, Indiana, commanding general of the Northwest Service Command, said in commending the 770th for its splendid record.

Traffic was stalled for 15 days and more than 30 derailments were caused by the heavy snowfall and blizzard. All available engines and crews were pressed into service working 18 and 20 hours at a stretch to break the tie-up.

MET EMERGENCIES

There are few sidings and only the single narrow gauge track so that innumerable problems were presented, but these GI railroad men, practically all of them old hands at railroading having been recruited from the railroads of the United States, met the emergencies with knowledge and determination.

One crew worked for 36 hours without turning in for a rest. At the peak, the storm and heavy snowfall had stalled 11 engines, and scores of cars along the tracks. Two rotary plows eventually broke snow drifts which had frozen solidly, to a height in many places of 20 feet. This snow was "wet" when it fell and a sudden rop in temperature froze it so hard that it was damaging to rotary plows.

If you have ever tried to boil a pan of snow, you have some idea of the amount of snow that had to be shovelled into the water tanks to keep the engines going behind the rotary plows.

Skagway, known as the "Home of the Winds," has what the American soldiers call one of the vilest climates in the world with rainfall fairly continuous throughout the entire year except for the blizzards and cold spells that blow out of "holes" yawing in unexplored vastness off the Lynn Canal.

Storms often swirl into Skagway at the head of the "canal" where snow and ice covered peaks rise abruptly five and six thousand feet above the village straggling along the rocky shores of the canal, which is the end of the famous Inside Passage along the Pacific Coast.

NARROW GAUGE

The railway, 110 miles of narrow gauge (36 inch) track which is just about as tough an operating job in railroading as any in the world, was taken over by the United States Army Oct. 1, 1942.

The railroad, until taken over by the U.S. Army under lease for the duration of the war, had operated as a tourist route and carried supplies for Whitehorse and trappers and prospectors who made Whitehorse their headquarters. Tonnage had been low, and equipment, and track were in need of repairs. The railroad had lost much of its personnel, and was taken over for operation by the army because of the increasing pressure of traffic being placed on it by the needs of the Northwest Service Command.

This railroad has played an historic role in the development of the vast territory opened up by the slashing through of the Alaska Highway from Dawson Creek, British Columbia, Canada to Fairbanks, Alaska, through wilderness country never before travelled except by an occasional trapper.

The toy railroad, as the U.S. soldiers operating it first dubbed this route, was one of the most important links in the building of the Alaska Highway.

Thousands of tons of equipment, supplies and thousands of civilian employees and soldiers went in over this little road to the central point of the Alaska Highway at Whitehorse.

Probably no more beautiful scenery exists in the world than that paralleling the winding rails of this road which rises from Skagway, 16 feet above sea level, to White Pass, 2,885 feet above, within a distance of 20 miles, clinging for miles at a stretch to what appear almost to be goat trails dug out of the surface of the sheer cliffs that drop for hundreds of feet directly beside the wheels to the deep gulch along which hundreds of the Klondike gold seekers made their weary trek in attempts to cross White Pass.

The railroad was built in 1898-1900 to carry miners and prospectors, many of them fresh from selling goods over a counter in a "city" store, and supplies to Whitehorse from which point water travel down the Lewes-Yukon River carried the eager adventurers to Dawson City and the Klondike Fields.

In recent years, the railroad had been an additional attraction for tourists travelling on the steamship lines operating from Pacific coast ports northward along the Inside Passage.

The railroad winds tortuously, crosses high level wooden bridges that crack a warning from the ghosts of hundreds of men who never made it over this pass in those mad days 45 years ago.

OTHER LINES

One of the pipe lines for the network of the Canol Project also runs from Skagway to Whitehorse, as do lines from Whitehorse to Fairbanks, Alaska, and Watson Lake near the Yukon-B.C. border in this country. Recently the main pipe line from Whitehorse to Norman Wells, 595 miles through the never before explored Mackenzie Mountain Range, was completed, and it is expected that oil from the Norman Wells field will be processed at the Whitehorse refinery for distribution over this network this spring.

Skagway's population of about 15,000 at the turn of the century had dropped to approximately 400 on Pearl Harbor Day.

Operation of the railroad was one of the most difficult tasks during that first winter as temperatures often dropped to 25 and 40 degrees below zero, and in some cases often lower than that for a few days at a time when engineers did not dare to halt their engines without keeping them moving slightly back and forth to prevent the wheels from congealing with the steel tracks.

The "Big Blizzard" this winter smothered a train about 30 miles from Skagway under huge snow drifts and while emergency crews were out attempting to clear the tracks, a snow slide occurred a few miles behind the train, cutting off all communication in either direction.

Three of the small locomotives were being used to haul this load and they ceaselessly drove into the heavy drifts, their rotary and disc plows ripping what seemed to be small dents in the great piles of snow until the rotary and five cars were derailed by another slide.

The engines ran out of water and were forced to draw their fire to keep from burning out the boilers. Coal for the stoves in the passenger cars of 1900 vintage ran short and the few passengers started to break up the furniture to keep from freezing.

The supplies of food were quickly exhausted as they consisted mainly of sandwiches and fruit and the passengers on the train, its crew and passengers, became precarious. Meantime, the ingenuity of the soldier-railroaders was being placed under its most difficult test of the entire winter.

It was decided to send a tractor-train across the snow and ice to the trapped train, carrying food and coal. The tractor-train finally consisted of a heavy duty tractor with three heavy sleds attached to it, reached the stalled train and began to supply food and warmth before any casualties occurred.

Meantime, rotary plows working from both ends of the snow drifts finally broke through and traffic was resumed.

Other hazards whipped by the 770th working under Lt.-Col. Herman C. Baughn, commanding officer included flash floods near Skagway which at one point ripped out four miles of track and for a time threatened to inundate the town of Skagway.

Report Finns Reject Some Peace Terms

By JACK FLEISCHER
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

STOCKHOLM, March 4.—Finland was reported to have completed her reply to Russia's proposals for an armistice and the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said it rejected Soviet demands for internment of German troops and withdrawal of Finnish forces within their 1940 borders.

Former Premier Juho K. Paasikivi of Finland, who initiated the peace talks, probably will leave for Stockholm within the next few days to deliver the Finnish reply to Mme. Alexandra Kollontay, Soviet ambassador to Sweden.

Stockholm newspapers reported that the Finnish parliament already has approved the government's answer to the six conditions laid down by Russia as a necessary preliminary to any armistice in Russian-Finnish hostilities.

Tidningen quoted a "particularly well-informed source" as saying that the Finns were asking for "more precise clarification" of questions left open by the Russian note, presumably including the demobilization of Finnish troops, reparations for damage in Russia and possession of territory around Petsamo.

The reply also was said to emphasize that the Finnish government wants to maintain contact with Russia looking toward an eventual peace.

A Finnish parliament session was called for Tuesday.

Reports that Russia has insisted on a Finnish answer to the Soviet proposals by Sunday at the latest remained unconfirmed, though it was obvious that the Russians would not give Finland unlimited time in which to reply.

Parkas and fur-lined flying suits were favored by a troupe of film and stage stars who made a brief stop in Edmonton while touring military establishments in Northwestern Canada, where they entertain Allied servicemen. The troupe is headed by Kay Francis, brunette siren of the screen, and includes such rising stars as Marsha Hunt and Reginald Gardiner. In the above picture the stars are being greeted by Col. Eugene Stevens, commanding officer at the Edmonton air base for the U.S. A.A.F. From left to right are: Col. Dear

Discussions between the City of Edmonton and Canadian National Railways officials are underway with a view to the beautification of the area on 100 street and Jasper avenue, just north of the Macdonald hotel. This area of one-storey shacks, you will remember, has been an eye-sore for many years, and it is hoped something will be done to remedy the situation. Frank Pike, retired banker, and for many years interested in all affairs affecting the welfare of Edmonton, recently brought this question to the attention of Edmonton citizens. He is a leading figure in a movement designed to turn the area into a park.

February 28

At the week-end a cold wave swept over central Alberta and Edmonton temperatures dropped 33 degrees, to the accompaniment of biting winds and snowflurries. Dr. G. H. Malcolmson, provincial radiologist and widely-known medical practitioner, died here Monday. Three war veterans will sit on the Alberta government's Veterans' Assistance Commission that will help returning servicemen and women with rehabilitation, it was learned today.

Skip Cliff Manahan, two-times Dominion curling champion, won his sixth Alberta title when his rink defeated Glen Williams of Calgary two out of three games in the British Consols final Saturday. Two final period goals, both from the stick of Sammy Samson, gave H.M.C.S. Nonsuch a 2-1 triumph over Canadian Athletic Club in the third game of the City Junior Hockey League play-off Saturday.

Expressing great appreciation "For the invaluable aid given us by you and your countrymen," Brig.-General D. V. Gaffney, commanding general of the Alaskan Wing, Air Transport Command, U.S. A.A.F., told the story of the history of the Air Transport Command to the Kiwanis Club meeting Monday.

Members of the 2nd (R) Battalion, The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, under Lt.-Col. R. W. Hale, M.C., E.D., officer commanding, put in a full day of winter training Sunday at the St. Albert farm of M. L. "Mickey" Ryan, famed northerner and transportation official. Alex. W. Kinnear, of 11904 95 street, employee of the city engineer's department, collapsed about 3:30 p.m. Sunday while conducting a survey of some property. Rushed by ambulance to hospital, he was found to be dead on arrival.

Resident of Edmonton for 28 years and secretary-manager of the Edmonton Cemetery Co., Capt. Wilfred R. Baker, died Sunday. More than 800 Americans and their friends witnessed exhibitions of fancy skating when Brig.-Gen. L. D. Worsham and Mayor John W. Fry officially opened the 1944 ice carnival of the North West Division of the U.S. S.D. Sunday.

February 29

Edmonton's cold wave is continuing unabated, and yesterday's snowfall piled up 3.7 inches, the heaviest contribution in any single day this winter. First two Leap Year babies to arrive in this city were a son to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Howard, 10582 108 street, born in the Misericordia, and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Hector Lamer, St. Albert, born in the General hospital.

Warren Taulbee, big U.S. Station Hospital forward, captured the most valuable player award in "A" section of the Edmonton Men's Basketball League. Vic Driver of Aircraft Repair, was selected most valuable to his club in the "B" division.

Edmonton's city council Monday night authorized Mayor John W. Fry to sign an agreement with the provincial government to set up day nurseries in the city, provided the provincial advisory committee considers there is a need for them in Edmonton.

E. H. Taylor, well-known city mail carrier, retired Saturday after 40 years of service with the city post office. Recent consolidation of the Northwest Service Command and the organization of the Divisional Engineer will not result in any immediate change in the set-up of the American Red Cross in Northwestern Canada, Charles Jacobus, field supervisor of the Red Cross here, said Tuesday.

March 1

The Alberta Legislature, which has been sitting since Feb. 10, is expected to complete its work and prorogue by the end of the third week in March, observers here at the Legislative buildings reported on Wednesday.

Ken Cox, shifty centre for the Canadian Athletic Club, headed the scoring list for the regular schedule of the City Junior Hockey League this season, with a total of 37 points, made up of 16 goals and 21 assists. Aircraft Repair edged out Bechtel, Price, Callahan 27-23 in the second game at Westglen Tuesday night to capture the "B" section title of the Edmonton Men's Basketball League. In the opener U.S. Station Hospital defeated Quartermasters 45-37. U.S. Army Air Corps won the championship of the Inter-Service Basketball League by defeating 402 Service Squadron 60-34 Tuesday.

With the birth of another baby boy at Misericordia at 8:35 p.m. Tuesday, the total number of Leap Year babies born here on Feb. 29 was five, four boys and one girl.

Sales of city land during February created a record for any February in the history of the department, with receipts amounting to $49,984 compared with $24,056 for the same month last year. Total sales at the War Savings Stamp Bar at 101 street and Jasper avenue for the week of Feb. 21 to March 1 amounted to $472.50. This brings the aggregate for the month to $1,637.25.

J. G. Nickerson, manager of the Royal Bank of Canada main branch, was elected president of the Northern Alberta branch of the Navy League of Canada at the annual meeting held Tuesday evening.

Miss Mary R. Crawford was unanimously chosen to contest the West Edmonton constituency in the next Dominion election, at the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation convention held at the I.O. O.F. hall Tuesday. Snowfall in February of 15.2 inches exceeded the accumulated fall in all the previous months of the winter, according to weather officials.

March 2

The 138-day school term from Jan. 3 to July 14, which contains no holidays except Good Friday and Easter Monday, is too long for the welfare of Alberta students, LAC. Gordon E. Taylor (S.C., Drumheller) said in the legislature Wednesday.

Thirty-six houses were turned over Wednesday by the contractor to the Administrator for Wartime Housing Ltd., and tenants are being located in them as fast as possible.

Miss Joyce Hepburn, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hepburn, 11143 67 street, was killed in a toboggan accident in the Highlands on Wednesday night. Telephone business between Edmonton and the United States jumped by 6.55 per cent. in the year 1942-43 over the previous year.

In the year 1943 total of 7,677,982 tons of coal was mined in Alberta, the second highest tonnage produced in the province's history.

U.S. Engineers defeated Ladd Field Hurricanes 41-33 Wednesday night, in the opening game of the Alaskan-Canadian invitation basketball tournament at Fairbanks, Alaska. H.M.C.S. Nonsuch defeated Canadian Athletic Club 6-4 Wednesday in the fourth game of the best-of-five series to win the city junior hockey championship. No. 3 "M" Depot defeated No. 4 LTS. 4-3 in the first game of the play-offs for the Inter-Service Hockey League title.

The qualifying age of Alberta voters is to be reduced from 21 to 19 years under terms of a bill to amend the Alberta Election Act, which was introduced into the Legislature Wednesday afternoon by Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., attorney-general. The bill was given first reading.

Promotion of Maj. H. E. Balfour, former Alberta school inspector, to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the directorate of education services at Ottawa, has been announced.

The largest number of applications, 343, since September, 1943, was received by the Edmonton Accommodation Bureau during the month of February, topping January's 285 applications for housing accommodation. The City of Edmonton would face a serious situation if mines in the city and district are closed at the end of March, City Commissioner Gibb stated Thursday.

Dufferin Paving Co., Ltd., of Toronto has been awarded the contract in excess of $500,000, for completion of the work on the Namao airport north of this city. A four-alarm fire of unknown origin gutted the premises of the Alberta Motor Boat Co. and Wings Construction Ltd., situated at the northern end of the Low Level bridge, causing heavy damage.

Maple Leafs and Edmonton Athletic Club battled to a 5-5 overtime draw Thursday night in the opening game of the best-of-three City Juvenile Hockey League playoff. The Alberta department of agriculture is now giving more services to the farmer than have been given at any time since the province was formed in 1905, Hon. D. Bruce MacMillan, minister of agriculture declared in the Legislature.

Building permits issued by the city architects' office for the period ended Feb. 29, 1944, amounted to $1,521,910 compared with $249,095 for the same period last year.

March 4

Indications are that the cold spell of the last week is abating and that milder weather is in store over the week-end. The agricultural course, jointly sponsored by the provincial agriculture department and the chamber of commerce was brought to an end. It lasted two days and was featured by addresses from widely known authorities on agriculture.

A group of eight Edmonton and district soldiers returned from overseas with glowing tales of the prowess of Canadian arms.

That's all for now.

Best of everything until next week.

Plenty More Needed

Seventy-six of Edmonton's Wartime houses have been finished, and with materials and labor now available as required, the whole 350 are expected to be completed by the end of July. There is no prospect that these, together with privately-built homes, will solve the housing shortage problem, or do more than ease the situation. While there is a heavy exodus of people who came here from the United States to help with projects which have been completed, the accommodation thus made available is being filled up by others released from improperly congested conditions.

Edmonton will be fortunate beyond expectation if by the end of the summer it is possible to revive the long suspended sanitary regulations regarding living space. The most that can be reasonably hoped is that another winter will find the residents housed with some more regard for comfort, convenience and safety than has been the case since 1941. How far this possible improvement can be realized will depend upon the amount of house-building that is done—in addition to the Wartime Housing project.

The Show-Down

Conferences are reported to have taken place at Madrid at which Franco was told he will have to stop giving non-belligerent help to Hitler if Spain is to continue to be treated by the Allies as a neutral state. The shipment of lend-lease arms to Turkey has been stopped, for the reason that the Turks are not using the weapons against Germany, as they were supposed to do.

These are hopeful indications that the Allies are tired being flim-flammed by the bogus neutrality of Franco and the racketeers at Ankara. Spain has been allowed to import food and industrial materials through the Allied blockade lines—and has rewarded that favor by forwarding imported and native materials to the Reich for the making of munitions with which to kill Allied soldiers and sink Allied ships. Turkey has wheedled tanks and planes and guns from the Allies which they could ill spare and which it had no intention of using against their enemy.

It was high time to end this two-ringed farce at either end of the Mediterranean and to tell Franco and Inonu to either get into the war or stay out of it. The Allies don't need either of them, can't trust either of them, and have less to fear from their open hostility than from the fake neutrality of one and the fake friendship of the other.

Coal Moves South and North

Last year Alberta coal mines turned out the second largest tonnage on record. The amount was more than 7,600,000 tons, and the value more than $22,600,000. There were 206 mines in operation at one time or another during the year, and 180 were working at the end of December.

All but a trifling fraction of the coal was sold in the western area. Ontario took only 1,190 tons, and none of the other eastern provinces bought any—despite, it is in order to remember, the coal shortage in the late months of last winter and the threatened coal famine last fall.

It may surprise some to note that 414,627 tons went to the United States, western states of course. The amount is small compared with the amount Ontario imports every year from Pennsylvania. But that there is a southerly movement from the Alberta field, as well as a northerly movement from the Pennsylvania field, is significant. Both movements are due to geography. In both cases coal follows the line of least resistance as represented by freight charges.

Under a sane arrangement of tariffs and other governing conditions, Alberta coal should flow regularly and in large volume into parts of the United States which are closer to our mines than to producing areas south of the border. The fact that Ontario patronizes the Pennsylvania mines so extensively is a lever with which it should be possible to widen the market for Alberta coal in the neighboring states.

Financing the Change-Over

An Industrial Development Bank is being set up, as a subsidiary of the Bank of Canada. Its function will be to finance the taking over of Government munitions plants by corporations or individuals and their conversion into producers of peacetime goods.

To expand the output of war equipment the Government has invested many hundreds of millions of dollars in such plants. It may be advisable to keep some of these for the production of supplies required by our defence forces in post-war years. But the bulk will no longer be needed or useful as munitions plants, and these are to be sold to industrialists.

Most of the plants will have to be largely or completely re-tooled for peacetime production. To buy and refit them will call for the expenditure of more hundreds of millions. But wartime taxation has scooped all but a fraction of industrial profits into the national treasury. Those likely to be interested in buying and operating the plants have thereby been prevented accumulating reserves of cash with which to do so.

To make long time loans for such purposes is outside the field of the commercial banks. Hence the setting-up of an Industrial Development Bank to provide the necessary loans when the time comes to transfer the plants from war to peace use.

It is to be hoped in the national interest that men and companies with experience in industrial operations will respond to the opportunity thus being opened up to them. If industry is to provide the hundreds of thousands of post-war jobs it is counted on to supply, the reconditioning of these plants cannot be carried through any too quickly as they cease to be required for the making of munitions.

Bulgaria is said to be angling for peace, but only on condition that it keep Macedonia. If that is the case the gentlemen at Sofia are overlooking one important point. It is the Allies, not their enemies, who are going to name the conditions of peace. This has been declared in the plainest of terms, and that will have to be the procedure if real peace is to be established.

For weeks the 8th Army has been held up by snow and rain and gales on the Adriatic end of the Italian front. The 5th Army to the west has been continuously hindered and intermittently stalled by similar conditions. And from the Anzio beachhead comes word that rain and snow converted the plains there into a "sea of mud". Italy's winter climate continues to get a lot of factual publicity that won't help the tourist business in post-war years.

Premier Badoglio wants Italy made a member in good standing among the United Nations. He is not getting much encouragement, and is not likely to get much. As a member in good standing Italy could put in a claim at the end of the war for the return of its colonies. It will be time enough to consider that question about twenty years from now—provided Italy in the meantime shows that it intends to maintain a democratic system of government.

A correspondent returning from a German internment camp says Nazi war losses have been brought home to the German people by the distorted stories which were given out regarding Allied air raids. Goebbels' hearers, noting how far he kept away from the truth in telling about raid damage, suspected that he was also lying when he told them about events of which they had no personal knowledge. The Dr. should have been more discriminating in choosing subjects on which to exercise his mendacious talents.

American Taxation Lower Than Canada's or Britain's

Overriding of Roosevelt's Veto Was Triumph for Greed

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

In a campaign year the merits or demerits of every issue are judged by their partisan effect. Thus, the revolt of Senator Barkley and the senate's over-riding of the President's perfectly constitutional veto of the wartime tax bill are hailed by the President's opponents—who include practically the whole press—as, in some way or other, a triumph of representative government.

Dorothy Thompson

That the President's veto note was couched in undiplomatic terms seems, to such partisans, reason enough for a demonstration of divided unity in government in wartime, despite the fact that it was noted with dismay by every United Nations embassy in Washington, and everywhere abroad shook confidence in Roosevelt whose prestige is unrealized by Americans.

The controversy is not soberly discussed on its merits at all. The question remains whether President or Senate was right; whether the tax bill voted is adequate. Actually, it is so inadequate as to suggest that the Senate is discounting the war as all but won, and is allergic to the most basic problems of war finance and post-war stability.

In this connection it is illuminating to read in the January bulletin of the Federal Reserve Bank, an article by R. A. Musgrave and H. L. Seligman, on the wartime effort (in finance) of the U.S.A., Britain, and Canada. The author says:

"While it is not feasible . . . to cover the entire cost of the war by taxation, it is generally agreed that taxation should cover as large as possible a share without imposing gross inequities and impairing production incentive. If an all-out tax effort is made, war finance is a powerful means of adjusting incomes to available civilian supplies. If extensive reliance is placed on borrowing from the banks, war finance turns into a source of aggravated inflationary pressures.

"Equally important, an all-out tax effort during the war reduces the financial difficulties of the post-war period."

How are we using taxation as a means to prevent inflation and reduce post-war hazards, compared to Britain and Canada?

Their answer is: Inadequately.

From this article, which attacks the question from all angles and is liberally illustrated with statistical charts, we learn the following:

Personal income taxes are much higher in Britain and Canada than here.

Corporation profits after tax have risen substantially above their pre-war level in the U.S.A. and remained practically unchanged in Britain. Canada falls somewhere in between.

The level of sales and excise taxes is substantially higher in Britain and Canada than here.

Canada is covering 52 per cent of its war expenditures, Britain 46 per cent, the U.S.A. 42 per cent by taxation.

Britain takes up 42 per cent of its national income in taxes; Canada 36 per cent; U.S.A. 32 per cent, although the per capita income is highest here and to drain off a larger per cent would mean less hardship than elsewhere.

British and Canadian rates are substantially higher than ours except for the very lowest income group. Large families with incomes of less than $1,500 pay a somewhat heavier tax here. Despite the fact that here, in contrast to Britain and Canada, corporation net income is twice taxed . . . the rates are still lower than in the other two countries.

Although Britain started the war at a higher level of taxation, the rates have risen much more sharply above the normal in the two British countries than here.

The yields from excise taxes on luxuries doubled in Britain and Canada and rose 50 per cent. here.

The authors conclude: "The adequacy of the tax effort must be measured for each country against its need for curtailing inflationary pressures. Few would hold that these are less serious here than in the two other countries. Yet, as we have seen, the tax effort in the U.S.A. falls far behind that of Britain and Canada.

In view of these unchallenged facts the senate's tax bill is, compared with the financial effort and distribution of taxation by our Allies, a measure for the greedy against the needy, inadequate, inflationary, and against the interests of our youth who will inherit the future.

The president's stand will victimize him further in the eyes of the Washington pressure groups. But sometime the republic may remember a brave and unpopular stand by a man who really knows how far we are from victory, and what tremendous dangers and problems the age is unfolding for us all.

Soldier Settlers

Editor, Bulletin: Through the medium of your columns may I make an urgent appeal on behalf of the old soldier settlers who are being callously evicted from their farms and homes by a bureaucratic S.S.B.?

After 25 years of seeking to re-establish themselves and fighting their old war disabilities, frost, hail, flood, drought, pests and disastrous market conditions, etc., surely these old soldiers deserve a better fate at sixty to sixty-five years of age than to be turned out onto the highway to fend for themselves. Is this what we are fighting for now?

Is such heartless conduct to be the fate of our present service boys and girls? Why not ensure decent treatment for them by condemning the present devious methods of the S.S.B. who compel these old soldiers to sign quit claims to their lands and homes?

"Mother of Conchies"

Editor, Bulletin: As a mother of two boys sentenced last week to nine months' imprisonment in the Fort Saskatchewan jail, and in view of the fact that we have heard so much against these boys, I think it only fair that I am given the opportunity of stating a few words in their defence.

I hope the following facts will be considered in the Christian spirit with which they are written.

The time has come when we must face the true facts, and recognize the real power of God. We are living in a time when Jesus has taken his great power and is reigning in the midst of his enemies (Psalm 110:2), the veil that has covered all nations is being lifted (Isa 25:7).

When we see Christian boys sent to jail because of their devotion to God, and their refusal to serve the mimic god, Satan, who, until the present time has been the ruler of this evil world (I John 5:19), we must come to the conclusion that those carrying on this persecution do not realize what they are doing. Matthew (25:40) states, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, we have done it unto me."

Daniel had a vision of this present time when he asked the question, "Oh my Lord, what shall be the end of these things," in Daniel 12:8. He received his answer in the next verse (Daniel 12:9): "Go thy way, Daniel, for the words are closed up and sealed until the time of the end."

We are living in that time now and the Bible truths are being revealed to all except those who have allowed the cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word and it becomes unfruitful (Mark 4:19).

Postmen's Appeal

Editor, Bulletin: During the last few days we have had quite a snowfall and it has been noticed by the mail carriers that there is a laxity on the part of the householders to sweep the snow from their verandahs, steps and walks leading up to the house and this is proving a very great hazard to your postie who is anxious to give you his usual good service.

In these days of long walks and big loads to carry he is indeed a very busy man and with the knowledge of so many of your dear ones being in the armed forces, and knowing how much you wait their letters from them, he wants to get to your house as soon as possible, but when he has to walk slowly and watchfully up to your house on account of snow and ice, he is slowing up a whole lot the time he should be in getting to the next house, besides the risk of slipping and sustaining a serious injury.

We therefore think it is not too much to ask for you to please remove the snow just as soon as it falls in order that we can give you that good service you so much desire.

We are sure that your baker and milkman will appreciate your doing this as well.

Just Retribution

Editor, Bulletin: In a recent issue of The Bulletin appeared the headline: "Believe Russia proposes ruthless measures aimed to keep Germany in check."

One wonders just how severe the Allies would be in meeting out judgment to the German warmongers before a tribunal. It is clear that the democratic people are a little fearful as to the result of such a trial, and well they might be. Mercy is not justice. No doubt mercy would be shown if it was Germany's initial attempt at world domination, but it is neither their first nor will be their last unless they receive severe and just retribution.

The writer is not a communist, but is wholeheartedly behind Russia in this present conflict and have every confidence in any drastic measures they may suggest as to how Germany should be dealt with after the war.

Germany is a brutal nation, a nation with an evil eye. Every country under the sun is acquainted with the traits and mischievous ways of this malicious people. Classed as a civilized people, they have the most cruel and brutal army ever known. Their wicked methods of destroying life and their atrocities committed in occupied towns and villages in Russia is deserving of all the punishment that Russia can mete out to them, notwithstanding the cruelty they have shown to Poland and the Jewish people.

Germany's sons (legitimate or illegitimate) are born and trained to be soldiers. Does the cream of our young manhood have to be taken from us in periods of years to check the advance of these renown invaders who have been a menace to the civilized world down through the ages? Leave it to Russia to settle their account with these Prussian gangsters and I'll warrant there will be no more wars with Germany.

Herbs

Editor Bulletin: It is good to read from time to time in your up-to-the minute paper of the progress made in the search for health and longevity.

Russia spends her research money in investigating the simple herbs and plants. These same herbs which grow in profusion in our rich soil are not given their rightful place in Canadian medicine. At the same time a woeful waste is going on in the mining of inorganic drugs. These while serving as a last resort as bactericidals in war and accident casualties, cannot build the human resistance necessary to ensure the constant conservation of health and magnetic energy.

On the contrary they have been proven by the most enlightened biophysicists to reduce energy mentally and physically. Why, then, in the face of modern knowledge are we reverting to the futile practice of alchemy? The Elixir of life will never be found in inorganic minerals and synthetic vitamins, for it is a scientific fact that inorganic minerals cannot be assimilated by the human digestive system.

Why not expend at least part of research funds and effort in investigating the vast resources of Nature's laboratory?

"Marvellous," says Macfie in his great work, "Sunshine and Health," is the precise quantitative relationship between the sun and the leaf—between light and life." He sees the forests, meadows and prairies as "great magazines and factories of energy," and that only in the plant is such a storage of sun-energy available, and without it animal existence would be impossible.

Dr. Crile, America's, if not the world's most eminent biophysicist, says words to the same effect in his book, "The Phenomena of Life."

As the simple herbs such as alfalfa and parsley have been found to be richer in radioactive particles (vitamins) than all other plants and fruits, it would be reasonable to suggest that a cup or two of herb tea as a daily complement to a well-balanced diet would work wonders towards maintaining the bloodstream constantly at the peak of its radio-electric energy.

Too many human guinea-pigs are lost in experiments of these ever-recurring wonder drugs. When we all become robots they will be all right, but while we are still a combination of the dust of the earth and the breath of life, let us turn back to Nature for our sustenance.

Years Behind

Editor, Bulletin: Your issue of Feb. 24, under an Ottawa date line, carried a news item dealing with the proposed setting-up of a Joint Council for the Federal Public Service.

The "council" will serve as an employer - employee consultative body for the civil service and will provide machinery for the adjustment and removal of grievances. Some of the employee representatives, it is indicated, will be named by the exisiting civil service associations.

It might interest the electorate of Alberta to know that the Dominion is twenty-one years behind the Province of Alberta in setting-up such a council. Back in 1921, Oct. 26 to be exact, the suggestion was laid before the government of the day, by the representatives of the Civil Service Association of Alberta and on Jan. 26, 1922, the government acceded to their request by setting-up the Alberta Civil Service Joint Council composed of three Cabinet Ministers and three employee representatives named by the Civil Service Association of Alberta.

Legislation giving effect to it was not, however, passed until 1938, when the Public Service Act was amended to provide for its proper establishment and to give it legal status.

However, since 1923, it has been the meeting ground of employer and employee. Since that time a multitude of matters affecting the interests of civil servants has been referred to this body. Matters of salary and wages, hours of work, sick - leave, holiday regulations, cost-of-living bonuses, subsistence rates, dismissals, voluntary contributions, classification, appointments to permanent staff, Civil Service Commission, superannuation and many others peculiar to the public service.

The Joint Council is one of the best instruments for bringing about a closer bond of interest between employer and employee. It is a tried and proven instrument of negotiation in the Alberta Civil Service and on that meeting ground many contentious matters have been threshed out in true democratic fashion and in an amicable manner.

One thing we should like to emphasize, Mr. Editor, is that the Joint Council came into being from below and as the result of association. The Civil Service Association of Alberta, representing the majority of civil servants, was incorporated March 19, 1919. One of the first things the founders of the Association did was to investigate the available types of grievance-machinery. The Joint Council or Whitley Council was the instrument chosen and it has more than justified itself during the intervening years.

Monetary Reform

Editor, Bulletin: Mr. Roper, C.C.F., M.L.A., said in the legislature: "Why can we not in this province go forward at once to a health plan that will be free, in the same way that our public schools are free" I think this is a very foolish and careless statement to make, as public schools and education are definitely not free.

There are no free social services in any country, not even in New Zealand. Mr. Roper went on, saying: "Such a plan is in operation in the little Dominion of New Zealand and we could have it here." We can have all the social services we want, providing we are willing and prepared to pay for them.

All C.C.F.-ers take New Zealand as their guiding star, and would have you believe that New Zealand has a C.C.F. government. Well, if that is so, here is what the people of New Zealand pay for their social services as reported in Newsweek of December 20th, 1943: "For their social privileges New Zealanders have paid stiff taxes, running in some cases to as much as 87 per cent. Except on items such as foodstuffs, there is a sales tax of 20 per cent." It must be remembered that it was not a Social Crediter that wrote this article, and Mr. Roper will have to do more than talk and wave his hands to prove it incorrect.

Mr. Roper is against capitalism and profits. I wish to inform him that when he invested money in his printing press and equipment, he became a capitalist and profiteer. Perhaps he does custom printing at cost since he does not believe in profits, but that would still leave him a capitalist.

Anyone investing money in a farm, business, tools, or equipment, does so with the hope of making a profit, and therefore is a capitalist, whether he knows it or not.

Monetary reform and a monthly divident (to buy life's necessities) is our salvation. And these adjustments can be made without having to call out the police force or the militia.

From Dead Cows

Editor, Bulletin: What a pity we have not a modern Gilbert and Sullivan, and what a name they would make; even Tin Pan Alley could make a smash hit with our government methods.

For years they have been draining the farms of workers, and now in surprise announce that Saskatchewan is down 12% of population in two years. They also are alarmed at the shortage of milk and butter and are offering a subsidy of 35c a 100 lbs. for fluid milk, while at the same time they are driving off their farms by eviction the old soldier settler farmers, and their dairy cows are going to the stockyards every day. Oh, yes, and now they announce a cut in our butter ration to one-half!

Well, when the government offers to pay a subsidy to get milk "from dead cows," where, oh where, are you Gilbert and Sullivan?

Orchids Stop Ships

From "The Bayous of Louisiana", By H. T. Kana

Water hyacinths, with their fragile green and odorless lavender flowers, are causing plenty of trouble in the bayous of Louisiana. The canals are becoming floating gardens of tight packed waxlike leaves.

Lakes, bays and waterways are overgrown almost in a season. Unless something is done within the next few years they will be impassable. Even a heavy motorboat can be stopped by the flowered barrier.

All seem to agree that the state began to see the water hyacinth in large quantities during the late years of the last century. The international cotton exposition in 1844 in New Orleans offered a widely admired display from Venezuela. Samples were given to visitors, who placed them in their ponds and waterways. Others believe that the water hyacinth drifted into Louisiana from Florida. In the warm shallow waters of the Louisiana lowlands, its roots anchored lightly to the banks and multiplied day by day. Bits broke away and found new places to conquer.

The consequence has been that waterways have been completely covered and choked so that they have become hidden lakes; large bays have lost half their open water and are rapidly losing more of it.

Millions of dollars have been spent by the government to wipe out the water hyacinth. At first the plan was to tear them out by the roots. Then an arsenic spray was attempted. But farmers complained that their cattle were being killed when they ate the plants. In recent years hyacinth "chewing" has been the approved method of destruction. An underwater conveyor on a barge pulls the plants into a hopper, where heavy rollers turn them into a mash. In a few hours the mash sinks.

The bayou orchids have one natural enemy—salt. When salt enters the water they sicken and drop to the bottom. But with them go the swamp trees.

"Easy Money"

BOISE, Idaho, March 4.—(AP)—Just wait until the wage stabilization director hears about this. Members of the Idaho legislature are going to get $10 for one day's work instead of the customary $5. One special session adjourned at noon. Another convened immediately. That's, two days so far as the lerie latture's calendar and pay clerk are concerned.

Social Service, Fuel Oil Taxes Are Protested

Protesting the effect of the Fuel Oil Tax Act on Alberta farmers, and calling for discontinuation of the social service tax, Lionel Tellier (Ind.-St. Albert) spoke in the budget debate in the legislature Friday.

The social service tax should be substantially lowered or abolished altogether, the member said. (The tax stands at three mills per acre of land.) "The government intends to levy $1,200,000 this year in Alberta, of which the farmers will be called upon to pay $1,000,000," he told the House.

RESOLUTION REJECTED

Mr. Tellier recalled that last year Independent party members brought in a resolution calling for abolition of the Fuel Oil Tax Act, but it had been voted down by the government.

"You will remember, Mr. Speaker, that the government defeated a resolution brought in by us last year for the abolition of this tax. Another $500,000 will again be paid by the farmers this year," he said.

On the subject of contributions required of cities, towns and municipal districts under the Mothers' Allowance Act and the Old Age Pensions Act, Mr. Tellier said that ten per cent of the cost of old age pensions and 25 per cent of mothers' allowance costs were required.

The government, along with the senior government, should assume full responsibility like most other Canadian provinces. "The village in which I live is called upon to pay approximately 25 per cent of its total gross revenue for these two items alone,' he declared.

Coward, executive officer of the St. Louis ordnance district, announced yesterday the wonder drug, penicillin, now is being manufactured in 24 tanks, each with a capacity of 2,500 gallons. That No Sufferer Shall Call in Vain

TODAY, hundreds of our boys in the thick of the battle are being carried quickly behind the lines to receive the life-giving blood transfusions made possible by the Canadian Red Cross. They will live to fight again, because we helped them when they needed our support. The wounded must have immediate care. The surgical supplies, the blood serum, the hospital equipment that spell life to them, must be ready on the spot.

And we must keep the spark of hope burning in the hearts of the boys who once fought for us gallantly, but now are helpless, behind enemy prison gates. Red Cross food parcels must reach our men regularly, to give them nourishment and hope.

Civilian needs are urgent, too. Food for the children of oppressed areas in Europe, help for the homeless, crippled children of Britain and emergency nursing care . . . all these must be provided by one means, the Red Cross. Make your donation big enough to cover the work required of it.

TODAY'S MESSAGE

By REVEREND J. B. M. ARMOUR
General Secretary of The British and Foreign Bible Society in Canada and Newfoundland.

"The Dew of Youth"

WHEN the Rev. J. K. Smith was obliged through ill health to resign his position as District Secretary of the British and Foreign Bible Society in North Alberta, the services of the Rev. H. O. T. Burkwall, a veteran secretary of the Society in China since 1900, were fortunately available. Accompanied by Mrs. Burkwall he took over the work in North Alberta in 1940, and it is no exaggeration to say that the results of his four years' work in this area have surpassed all expectations. The Rev. J. K. Smith had laid a foundation of faithful service and devotion to duty.

Mr. Burkwall is a minister of the Swedish Evangelical Church, born and brought up in the United States. After some years' service as a missionary in China, he joined the staff of the Bible Society as already indicated. His first-hand knowledge of conditions in China, his evangelical zeal, and the passion of his soul for the work of the Bible Society, soon made themselves felt amongst the branches in North Alberta, and not least in the City of Edmonton. He not only worked hard himself, but inspired others to devote themselves to the cause which he had so much at heart. Wherever he went he left a good impression. Specially welcome was he amongst the Chinese. When he visited a restaurant he could speak fluently in Cantonese—the language of the majority of the Chinese in Canada.

But if tribute is due to Mr. Burkwall, it is almost doubly due to his wife. A fluent and acceptable speaker, she accompanied her husband on many of his journeys, and in the City of Edmonton and elsewhere is regarded as one of the most capable and inspiring woman speakers heard in recent years.

Mr. Burkwall's retirement is duc entirely to the state of his health. To the joy of friends of the Society he and Mrs. Burkwall will continue to reside in Edmonton, and help the newly-elected secretary, the Rev. E. J. Heuer, (pronounced Hoyer), in every way possible.

While life lasts, Mr. Burkwall will labor in the interests of the Society, and it is no exaggeration to slate that his presence in Edmonton, and his visits to many branches of the Society in the northern area, have not only resulted in helping forward the interests of the Society he loves so well, but have ministered to the Christian good of the whole locality, and have cheered and strengthened the faith of all with whom he has come in contact.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Rev. E. J. Heuer, B.A., B.D., newly-elected District Secretary of the Bible Society for Northern Alberta, will take up his new duties as from July 1, 1944.

McCoy Health Service

Yesterday's article dealt with two of the root vegetables—carrots and beets—and in today's article I am going to tell you about some of the others, beginning with turnips.

The turnip is said to be grown in every temperate climate in the world. Having a distinct flavor, it is widely used in flavoring soups and stews. It is also cooked by itself as a separate vegetable. The most delicate flavor is found in the turnip of small size, in which the carbohydrate content is not over 5 per cent. The more mature the turnip, the higher the carbohydrate content and when you are sitting at the table and eating the larger size turnips, you are getting a vegetable having carbohydrate content of about 10 per cent. In other words, you are eating a medium-starchy vegetable. Raw turnips are considered good sources of vitamin C.

Parsnips, when mature are credited with a carbohydrate content of 15 per cent. The fleshy white root possess a flavor which is enjoyed by many, although others dislike it. Some growers leave a part of the crop in the ground through the winter, believing that the flavor will be better when this is done, than when the roots are dug and stored away. Apparently freezing does not injure parsnips. This vegetable is ranked as a good source of vitamin B.

Oyster Plant or Salsify, should be used as young as possible before the starch has had time to develop. The flavor is very bland and agreeable. The best scrape the oyster plant but wash well with a vegetable brush and cook in plain water. When cut up thin and seasoned with cream and butter the flavor will slightly resemble that of an oyster stew. Oyster plant is a very wholesome non-starchy vegetable and deserves a much wider use.

Because of Rutabagas being in that class of non-starchy vegetable which may easily cause fermentation, I suggest that they be used with caution by those troubled with any tendency toward excessive stomach and intestinal gas. Those in good health who do not notice any gas after their use, may take them occasionally for the sake of variety.

The rutabaga is also called the Swedish Turnip and the carbohydrate content is around 9 per cent. The yellow flish has a taste somewhat similar to that of the turnip, being fairly sweet.

Celeriac, also called Knob Celery, or Turnip Celery, is a variety of celery grown for its large, edible root. It may be added to soups and stews, and will be found to add to the flavor.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service. The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Double Opportunity

Gardiner Says Shipments Of Beef to Great Britain Building Post-War Market

By JAMES McCOOK

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said yesterday in the Commons that Canada has a double opportunity in supplying surplus beef to the United Kingdom at present: to meet urgent needs and to build up a market there for the post-war years.

The minister said Canada may need a market for 300,000 head of cattle a year after the war. There might be pressing need for sales in the United Kingdom. If high-quality beef were shipped at present, the prospects of holding the market when competitors appeared would be improved.

Speaking in discussion on agriculture department estimates, Mr. Gardiner said the suspension of meat rationing announced this week had been discussed with both British and United States authorities. There would be no point in opening up beef cattle shipments to the United States at a time when plants there were having as much trouble handling heavy marketings as those in Canada.

ASKS U.S. MARKET

Lt.-Col. J. A. Ross (PC-Souris) said there should be access to the United States market for Canadian beef cattle, and J. G. Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) said he had letters from farmers saying there was no market for beef cattle in Canada.

Mr. Gardiner said that under a trade agreement with the United States Canada could ship a certain number of beef cattle yearly, but shipments had been hailed in 1942 when all available supplies were needed at home.

If cattle might be sold in the United States at the prices prevailing there, there would be no beef for shipment to the United Kingdom and there would not be enough for home consumption if the price ceiling were maintained. The decision had been made that Canadian surpluses should be sent to Britain, after discussions with United States and United Kingdom representatives.

The United States took the natural attitude that if Canadian beef were to be sent to the United Kingdom under mutual aid arrangements, it should be Canada's duty to send it, not that of the United States.

Mr. Gardiner said the Canadian meat board buys meat when it comes close to the floor price and holds it for shipment to the United Kingdom, none of the higher beef grades had been far below the price ceiling and only cow meat had been available for overseas shipment.

PLAN IS STUDIED

An attempt was being made to work out a plan under which high-quality beef might be sent to the United Kingdom, on a basis similar to that under which contracts are made for shipment of bacon. The contracts would assure that the necessary shipping was available.

Considerable money had been spent before the war in an effort to convince the United Kingdom that Canada could place high quality beef on the market there.

"Now that we have an opportunity during wartime of doing two things at one time, namely, doing a patriotic act and supplying to Great Britain at a time when she needs it, I believe we should demonstrate to the British people that we can supply good meat—the very best of it," the minister said.

HOPE FOR BIG MARKET

"Because when the war is over, if we are producing as many cattle as we are producing today—and all of us hope we will be—we will be requiring sooner or later a market for about 300,000 head of cattle.

"And if we are not able to find that market on this continent, there is only one other place we can find a market and that is in Great Britain."

Harry Leader (L., Portage La Prairie) said there should be no criticism that the Wheat Board price of $1.25 a bushel for wheat, basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William, was too high when the United States price was $1.70. He had not favored the wheat-acreage reduction program, which is being dropped this year, since it was "wrong in conception and inequitable in administration." A "fair price" for wheat earlier would have been a better system."

Mr. Diefenbaker said there should be a check to see that the federal government had the power to make effective the floor prices which had been promised for agriculture after the war.

Mr. Gardiner said draft legislation was being examined by the justice department and he did not anticipate any difficulty.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had letters suggesting that the wheat-acreage reduction program be continued in Saskatchewan in light of the continued need of top production of feed crops. The demand for a board of livestock commissioners was "universal," and government action was necessary.

Mr. Gardiner said he believed more than 100,000 hogs a week now are being marketed in excess of totals for last year and that a "reasonable proportion" are of quality suitable for bacon for Britain.

The minister said he had heard little but criticism of the wheat-acreage reduction program in the house and was pleased to hear that farmers were suggesting it might be a good thing to continue. Some 182,000 farmers had taken advantage of the policy and the government had paid out $80,000,000 under it.

Referring to criticism expressed last winter of the activities of farm inspectors by J. W. Burton (C.C.F., Humboldt), Mr. Gardiner said he was surprised a farmer of Mr. Burton's experience should refuse to help an inspector by estimating the yield on his own crops.

The inspectors had done a good job as a whole in administration of the prairie farm assistance act. A check was made afterwards and in very few townships were the estimates of inspectors changed.

SAPPER A. L. EVANS

A black and white portrait in oils of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughten, is the latest achievement of painter Sapper L. A. Evans, Royal Canadian Engineers Overseas, a noted portrait artist. The painting, copied from a photograph, hangs in the office of Col. E. J. Young at Canadian military headquarters in London, Eng. Sapper Evans, a veteran of the First World War, has already had one of his paintings hanging in the National Portrait Gallery in London, and now is attending St. Martin's School of Art on a scholarship awarded through the educational services branch of the Canadian Army Overseas. Sapper Evans lived in Alberta for 33 years before enlisting in Canada's armed forces for his second World War. Joining an engineering unit in Edmonton in July 1940, he arrived overseas in February 1941 at the age of 49. In his first war he went overseas with the Canadian Mounted Rifles. Early in life he attended an art school in Boston for a short period but a move to this province in 1909 and World War I interrupted his plans for a commercial art career. In his second "tour" overseas, Sapper Evans has continued his interest in art and has done a number of pictures of army life. His family—wife and three children are now living in Lloydminster, Sask.

Ralston Not Deluded War Already Won

BOSTON, Mass., March 4.—(CP)—Hon. J. L. Ralston, Canadian minister of defence, last night cautioned against any relaxation of the war effort and asked that civilians match the steadfastness, fortitude and courage of the armed forces to shorten the war and make victory more certain.

In an address prepared for delivery to a dinner gathering of the Canadian Club here, Col. Ralston said there is no cause for delusion that the war is already won.

LONG, STEEP CLIMB

"We are glimpsing the top of the hill through the clouds but it is still a long, steep, rocky climb," Col. Ralston said. "But there will have to be a lot more good news before the end of the road is reached."

He said the Allied peoples must realize:

1. That more than half the area captured by the Axis is still conquered territory;

2. That there is not much evidence that German military power has decreased;

3. That there is no sign that the Japanese troops have lost any of their willingness to fight and die;

4. That the battles now being waged in Italy are only on the southern fringe of Europe;

FAR FROM GERMANY

5. That the land forces there are still nearly 800 miles from Germany and that there is plenty of formidable opposition and tough ground on the way;

6. That the continent of Europe still has to be retaken.

7. That whereas 26 years ago last night the Allies were well inside Europe and held more than three-quarters of France and a considerable part of Belgium, last night they haven't even a toehold across the channel;

8. That the superb fighting of Russia has still to be matched;

9. That China must be liberated and Hong Kong avenged;

10. That Burma, the Malay peninsula and Singapore and the Philippines must be regained and the southwest Pacific cleared.

Jottings From House Session

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Total cost of administering the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act in 1943 was $116,260, the agriculture department reported in a return for T. C. Douglas (C.C.F.—Weyburn).

A total of 8,347 new temporary employees were placed on federal government payrolls between Aug. 1, 1943, and mid-February, State Secretary McLarty said in tabled return for G. K. Fraser (P.C.—Peterborough West). Many of the new employees were hired to replace other temporary employees who had resigned.

The federal government has nearly 200 inspectors in Canada charged with responsibility of inspecting beef in packing plants to determine whether or not it should be condemned. Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in a return for John Blackmore, New Democracy leader.

Urges Larger Water Projects In Dry Areas

OTTAWA, March 4.—(CP)—Dr. F. W. Gershaw (L., Medicine Hat), said last night in the Commons that residents of Alberta areas which have suffered from drought should have irrigation projects larger than those so far provided under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said that at least two larger irrigation schemes for Alberta and Saskatchewan areas are under consideration for the post-war period. This had been outlined in a recent review of Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act operations.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, asked if Mr. Gardiner would have a parliamentary assistant. If this were done, a balance between east and west should be considered. The minister was from the west, and an eastern Canadian assistant probably would meet with approval.

MATTER FOR PREMIER

Mr. Gardiner said he would not exceed his prerogatives by discussing whether he should have a parliamentary assistant. Such a matter was for Prime Minister Mackenzie King. But the federal agriculture department was only one of 10 in Canada while there were no defence or munitions departments in the provinces. The provincial departments were in a position to assist the federal department and its ministers.

William Bryce (C.C.F., Selkirk), said condemnation insurance deductions were made from payments for livestock he had shipped, and he wondered by what authority these deductions were made by packers.

Mr. Gardiner said the insurance had been agreed upon between producers and buyers to cover the payment in cases where an animal delivered was condemned as unfit for human consumption. It protected the shipper against taking the full loss when one of his animals was condemned. The insurance was not compulsory.

Mr. Bryce said an injustice was being done to farmers by the insurance. He had always believed it was compulsory. Collections of insurance were in excess of the amount required to pay for animals condemned and the rate should be reduced.

Mr. Gardiner said the government had investigated the condemnation insurance situation and it appeared most packing plants had collected little more than had been paid out.

He personally paid the insurance rate rather than take a chance on losing the full value of animals condemned.

Victor Quelch (N.D.-Acadia) said that when the floors on agricultural prices were established they should ensure farmers a parity price for their products. A system of crop insurance also should be established.

Mr. Gardiner said crop insurance was primarily a provincial matter.

Mr. Quelch said such a scheme might be beyond the means of a province.

Mr. Gardiner told T. C. Douglas (C.C.F., Weyburn), the proposed price-floor bill would not likely fix actual minimum prices. It would be in general terms and authorize certain things to be done under certain conditions. It would likely take effect six months after the war ended, when the present price-stabilization arrangements under the war measures act would expire.

R. T. Graham (L., Swift Current), said recent development in seed had indicated that much labor in thinning sugar beet plants might be averted in the future and place the sugar beet industry in a more favorable position.

Mr. Gardiner said there was no sure indication that the labor of hoeing sugar beet fields to thin the plants could be done away with.

Immigration Opportunities Are Plentiful

Canada possesses great opportunities for immigrants, E. E. Hyde, principal of Eastwood High School, said Friday night at the Y.M.C.A. in discussing "immigration" in the So-Ed course on modern Canadian problems.

"There are many places across Canada where immigrants can thrive, but the problem isn't as simple as that," he said.

"One of the points that must be considered in encouraging an immigration policy is that we must take people who want to come, and prepare productive industry to absorb them."

Other speakers were Dr. J. R. Vant, of the medical faculty of the University of Alberta, who spoke on "Sex, a Problem or a Privilege," and C. D. Taylor, psychiatrist, who spoke on "Mind and Body."

Dr. Vant placed the responsibility of clearing Canada as a nation from social disease on the individual.

Dr. Taylor emphasized that mind and body, like an army, must work together.

SECOND PART

In the second part of the program, Vernon Barford, director of music at All Saints' Cathedral, spoke on "Masters and Miniatures"; the Rev. Daniel Young, minister of First Baptist Church, discussed "Practical Application in Public Speaking"; Miss Kay Lind spoke on "Family Frolic," and J. I. Shepsy continued his instruction in "Beginner's Bridge."

Each week the third part of the So-Ed program is devoted to a party, arranged by Ralph Young, "Y" program secretary, assisted by Miss Margaret Latter and Harold Sprague, chairman of the So-Ed committee.

More than 180 young Edmontonians are registered for the So-Ed series which commenced Feb. 18 and will last for three more consecutive Fridays, concluding March 24.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

FANS generally will approve the action of both Alberta Hockey Association and the C.A.H.A. in sending the Canadian Athletic Club juniors into the next round of the Memorial Cup playdowns. And furthermore, the team which most citizens considered a cinch bet for the city series should worthily represent this province.

Canadians certainly are capable of playing much better hockey than they did in their last two starts—their record for the league season amply demonstrating that. Any club which drops only a single game out of 13 (one was a tie) must have something on the puck. Canucks also defeated and leaked mighty good against the Saskatoon Lions at Lloyminster.

Incidentally the Lions since have been eliminated by the University of Saskatchewan, a club alleged to be a regular powerhouse. But then a standout from a senior league should be a big help to any junior aggregation and Gerry Couture, who has been with the rampaging Saskatoon Navy sextet all winter is all of that.

Anyway Alberta has a good entry in the playdowns and while this may be Trail's year, as the club is understood to have been spiked with some Manitobans, British Columbia has never been able to stop this province in the past and Edmonton fans at least will be surprised if that happens this time. Ken Henry, manager of Canadians said last night, "We'll be ready for Trail."

OPEN AIR RINKS IN STYLE

NEIL COLVILLE played all of his hockey in Edmonton until going to Brooklyn Crescents back in 1934. He was with Philadelphia the next year and then with New York Rangers until joining the army in 1942. Last spring he supplied the chief reason why Ottawa Commandos took the Allan Cup.

Things are different this year, but Neil is getting in a little hockey at "M" Depot while "waiting" and it was nice to see him too again in the Inter-Service League final at 119 street rink last night. He snared a pair of goals, also an assist, turned in a neat defence job and stayed on the ice for the first 56 minutes. A nasty cash over the left eye from a deflected puck abruptly terminated his part in the Depot win. "Well, maybe this means a few days out of the cook-house," drolled Neil while temporary repairs were being effected.

They raise a lot of hockey players and good ones too, down Winnipeg way. No less than 10 with the "M" Depot team claim the Manitoba capital as their home address. Don McDermott, who paired with Colville on defence last night is one of them. Still a junior, it is little wonder that the Toronto Maple Leafs have him "tied up."

Others with the club from Winnipeg are Jack Channing, Jack Milford and Bob Millen. Goalie "Doc" Flaherty is from Victoria, Bob Bauman from Hamilton, "Mickey" Marlos from Gray, Sask., Stan Moir from Saskatoon and Jimmy Anderson and Maurice McClosky from Edmonton.

WATERLOO—NOT KITCHENER

AL McMILLAN, goalie for No. 4 I.T.S., used to get his mail at Vancouver and defenceman Russ Grant came from Killam. Glenn Gray, in addition to being one of Alberta's finest golfers, was of course the reference who with Ed. monton's champion Canadians a year ago. Glenn turned in a swell effort last night and is just as good-natured and just as robust as ever.

Roy Carleton's home is in Cabri, Sask., and Eddie Watson played three playoff games, in addition to a pair of earlier exhibitions with Saskatoon's Junior Quakers at the Arena during the 1940-41 season and for the two years since, his mail had to be sent overseas.

Stan Walsh is from Timmins, Ont., Don McLeod is another Vancouverite, while Jack Fisher hails from Saskatoon and Art Weist from Lethbridge. And Ray Bauer, brother of Bobbie, of the famous Kraut trio, claims the family address is Waterloo, and not — mark you — Kitchener.

At I.T.S.

Eddie Watson, member of the Junior Quakers when that Saskatoon club played against the E.A.C. entry in the Memorial Cup playdowns here three years ago is over at No. 4 I.T.S. Eddie, slated to go into the N.H.L. along with his brother Harry, joined the R.C.A.F. in the fall of 1941. He has since spent nearly two years overseas.

Take Final Game 5-2

"M" Depot Beats I.T.S. In Service League Series

No. 3 "M" Depot defeated No. 4 I.T.S. 5-2 in the rubber game of the best-of-three series for the Inter-Service Hockey League title at 119 street on Wednesday night and accordingly advanced into the final of the Edmonton R.C.A.F. playdowns.

"M" Depot meets No. 2 A.O.S. on the same ice tonight and the winner is scheduled to play in Calgary next Wednesday in the semi-final round of No. 4 Command playoffs.

Ned Colville, former New York Ranger whipped in two goals for the winners and assisted in another; Bob Bauman, of Hamilton, Ont., and Jack Channing and Don McDermott, both of Winnipeg, divided the remaining three. Russ Grant, of Killam and Mel Bowman, of Innisfail were the I.T.S. scorers.

The Depot pucksters took a 2-0 lead in the opening period, Colville beating goalie Al McMillan on a close-in shot followed a solo. Bauman added another, also an assisted, just before the end of the period.

Russ Grant combined with Glen Gray, formerly of Edmonton Canadians for the first I.T.S. counter early in the middle session, but Jack Channing came back with one for Depot to leave the score 3-1 at the second breather.

Mel Bowman converted Ray Bauer's pass to cut the margin to a single goal after five minutes of the third period, but Neil Colville slapped in another for Depot following a scrimmage in front of the I.T.S. net.

Don McDermott clinched the verdict for "M" Depot when he took Colville's pass when in the clear just a few feet out from the goal.

Both "Doc" Flaherty, in the Depot nets and whose home is in Victoria and Al McMillan, his I.T.S. opponent from Vancouver turned in smart goal-keeping jobs, especially in the final period.

TORONTO, March 4. — (CP) — Word along the Pacific grapevine is that Sacramento's entry in the Coast League baseball franchise is insecure and that the club may be transferred to Vancouver in midseason . . . Bob Brown, representing Vancouver interests, said on his return from a league meeting: "We'll have a franchise in the Coast League by 1945 and nobody in baseball will be surprised of we acquire the Sacramento franchise this year."

Brown says Sacramento drew less than 60,000 fans last season whereas the league now has set 125,000 paid admissions as a minimum for holding a franchise. He figures Sacramento's chances of reaching their figure are negligible. On the other hand Brown thinks Vancouver could draw at least 160,000 a season for class AA ball.

CORRECTION:

F. L. Bishop writes from Battleford, Sask., to correct our report that a Cloisonne cup is being donated to the Hockey Hall of Fame and had been presented to North Battleford Beavers in Japan. Bishop states that the cup was presented to the Battleford Sunrise Millers by the Japan-Canadian Association of Tokyo in 1935; and that the Millers were the only foreign hockey club ever to visit Japan. Bishop financed and sponsored that tour.

COACHING HINTS:

Trainer Bill O'Brien told Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll that the current Canadiens are the best conditioned team in the club's history and he believes it is because the players are employed in war work "They get up early and go to their jobs instead of lying in bed until two o'clock in the afternoon. They eat regular meals like normal working people. They come to the rink at night to practice and they're tired when it's over—too tired to go gadding around. Most athletes get out of condition through irregular meals and irregular habits but there's been none of that around here this year."

"Coffee Bowl" Football Game At White City

By ALLAN NICKLESON

LONDON, March 4—(CP)—That "tea bowl" football game Feb. 13 in which a Canadian Army team defeated one from the American Army was such a howling success that there will be a repeat performance March 19. This time, however, it will be known as the "Coffee Bowl."

London's huge White City Stadium never saw such a game as that first encounter when the Canadian Army Mustangs defeated the American Army Pirates 16-6 before a crowd of 30,000 Canadians, Americans and Britons. The return contest is expected to draw 40,000.

Although the Canadian lineup will remain mostly the same as the previous till, the Americans will field a new team called the Blue Division. The boys will play the first half under Canadian rules and the remainder under American regulations—just the reverse of the first game when the initial half ended in a scoreless tie and the Canadians cut loose with their scoring splurge in the second.

Meets Angott For Undisputed World Honors

By FRITZ HOWELL

NEW YORK, March 4.—(AP)—Bob Montgomery of Philadelphia slashed out a 15-round decision Friday over Beau Jack of Augusta, Ga., to win the New York version of the world's lightweight boxing championship. Montgomery weighed 135 and Jack 134.

The largest indoor crowd in years, 19,066, paid $111,954 to see the thrilling bout and watched Montgomery take the laurels from the "Beau" just as he did last May. In November, Jack regained the title.

Montgomery, after having control through the first eight rounds last night, had to stage an uprising in the last two sessions to win the verdict. There were no knockdowns, but the action was fast and furious all the way.

It was a split decision for Montgomery, Judge Morly Munroe voting Jack the winner eight rounds to seven. Judge Bill Healy gave Montgomery eight, Jack six and called the other seven, while referee Arthur Susskind (Young Otto) voted the same as Healy.

15-ROUNDER MARCH 31

The victory sends Montgomery against Sammy Angott in the Garden March 31 in a 15-rounder for the undisputed world title, Angott now holding the sanction of the N.B.A.

Montgomery went into last night's fray a 9 to 5 underdog, and his victory provided the Garden with its third upset in as many weeks. Only two weeks ago Montgomery, a 1-to-4 choice, was knocked out in 63 seconds by Al Davis, Brooklyn welterweight—the fastest kayo in Garden history—and a week Al Baski, Kulpmont, Pa., heavyweight, on the short end of 13-5 odds, outpointed Tami Mauriello.

Thus Montgomery rose from flat on his back to the New York world's title in two short weeks.

Jack swarmed all over Montgomery to win the first round Friday night.

TAKES OVER IN SECOND

Montgomery took over in the second, shaking the Beau with several rights to the head, and won the next two sessions the same way. The fifth was practically even.

Monty unsettled Jack on the ropes for two full minutes in the sixth without much return, and staggered him with hard rights in the midsection to take the seventh, although Beau has the better of the infighting.

Montgomery started sharpshooting, looking for a kayo in the eighth, but he almost wore himself out swinging as Beau made him miss.

Bob was visibly tired and wobbly as they came out for the ninth, and Beau swarmed all over him. In the 10th Beau hooked his left eight or nine times to Montgomery's jaw without a return, and then looped his right to the midsection as Montgomery hung on.

The 11th, 12th and 13th were almost replicas of the 10th, with Jack finishing strong while Montgomery weakened. In the 14th, however, Montgomery shook his bounding foe with several rights to the jaw to take the round, and then staged a whirlwind finish to sew it up in the 15th.

Indoor Meet

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)— Track teams from the United States army and navy academies are the top heavy favorites in an indoor track and field meet at Madison Square Garden today.

Twenty-four colleges from up and down the Atlantic sea coast are entered in the 22rd annual indoor varsity festival which this year is headed by a special race of a mile in which Gil Dodds of Boston, will be after his fifth straight victory of the winter.

Comets Triumph 34-18

Air Corps Ousts Aircraft From Intermediate Playoffs

OUT-SCORING their opponents in every quarter except the last, U.S. Army Air Corps overwhelmed Aircraft Repair 40-28 at Westglen Friday night in a sudden death intermediate basketball clash. The American Airmen will now meet Station Hospital in a game next Tuesday at Westglen to decide the district championship in that division. In the second half of the header last night, Comets defeated a pikked team which included three referees, 34-18.

The Air Corps club winners of the Inter-Service League, title were paced by fast stepping "Tex" Wheeler who came through with 11 points while Bruce Hembling, a military replacement, and Ken Shaw were top scorers for the losers with six each.

The winners displayed a smart passing game and were in on the basket for 16 field goals to 10 chalked up by the Aircrafters to out-shoot the latter by 26 tries, 77-46.

There wasn't much action in the first quarter as Air Corps—with Lowell Cornwell and John Panvini each firing three points and Wheeler two—took an 8-7 lead, but the winners got their passing plays working in the second and completely out-classed the "B" section champions of the E.M.B.L. by rapping in 13 counters to the latter's two to earn a 21-9 lead at the half way mark.

The third session was closer, but the victors continued to out-pace the Aircrafters and went on to increase their margin to 32-17 at three-quarter time. The losers came back in the last canto and out-played the Airmen as they marked up 11 points to the Americans' eight, but the lead built up by the latter in the first three quarters was too much for them to overcome.

Following is the box score:

NOEL SCORES NINE TO PACE COMETS

Peppy Comets had very little trouble in trimming a picked team called the Referees in the second half of the doubleheader last night when they out-scored the men in every quarter to win out 34-18.

Noel (MacDonald) Robertson, one of the all-time Grad stars led the Comets with nine points while Sammy Sheckter, Varsity cager, set the pace for the losers with six. Every member of the winners came through for her share of the points too. Peggy Colville marked up seven, Margaret Paterson and Ette Dann five each and Jean Quilley and Frances Gordon four apiece.

The Comets took a 12-8 lead in the first quarter and increased it to 19-12 in the second, counting seven to the Referees' four. They then out-scored the losers 6-4 in the third to hold a 25-16 lead entering the last canto and added nine to the men's single field goal in the fourth to clinch the exhibition.

NEW YORK, March 4.—As Johnny Vander Meer shifted today from the Cincinnati Reds to Uncle Sam's Navy, the strikeout king of the National League said he got a greater kick out of clinching the pennant for the Reds in 1940 than in registering his historic second straight no-hit no-run game in 1938.

Vander Meer said, "If you're looking for superlatives in my life, I'll tell you the lowest I ever felt was last summer when I was rejected for service because of colitis—a stomach condition—brought on by the muscular tenseness of pitching in major league games."

Since then southpaw Johnny relaxed and dieted. And he passed his physical examination for the Navy five weeks ago. He is married and has a 14-months-old daughter. But he says, "I wanted to get in. Everyone else is getting in. And I don't see why I should be an exception."

WANTS BALL TO CONTINUE

VANDER MEER, who topped the National League with 174 strikeouts last season, said he hoped that baseball would continue, in an interview over the phone from his home in Ridgewood, N.J. He said, My contacts with servicemen at the various camps convinces me that they want major league baseball to carry on so that they can have something to talk about."

But what was his greatest thrill in the major leagues? Vander Meer said that came on the afternoon of Sept. 19, 1940. It seems that in 1939 his southpaw flipper went bad. So he spent part of the 1940 season with Indianapolis. Finally it appeared that his great wing was okay again so he was called back to Cincinnati.

Back with the Reds, he felt himself out by pitching satisfactorily a nine-inning game against the Cubs. Then, on Sept. 15, he was called to the mound against the Phillies in the game that could clinch the pennant. He wasn't sure of his arm, but at the end of the ninth inning the score was 2-all.

GREATEST THRILL

BUT the great thrill of my life came in the innings that followed, when I discovered that my arm could stand up under extra-inning strain. Now I knew it was all right, because the arm was swell in extra innings—which is like a fellow who has been trained for the 100-yard dash feeling swell when he runs 120 yards at top speed."

In the 13th inning of that game, Vander Meer made a long stride for Cincinnati baseball. He hit a double, and ultimately came home on Ival Goodman's long fly to win the game, 4-3.

Vander Meer said, "I was so happy after winning that game—after discovering that my arm was okay again—after clinching the pennant for the Reds—that I felt as if I had wings. Naturally, I felt good after those two no-hit, no-run games in '38, but nothing like I felt that afternoon in 1940."

Westglen Beats Victoria 25-23 In Cage Final

Westglen edged out Victoria 25-23 at Eastwood Friday in the deciding game of the class "B" city high school basketball playoffs which was one of the fastest encounters of the season. It was the last fixture of the year in which three city high schools have been competing. Scona being the other team.

The Westglen champs now journey to Barnwelle, after an exhibition game at Calgary, for the provincial championship.

Jim Fleming who proved to be the most outstanding player on the floor led his team with a total of 13 points. Eric Geddes of Victoria also scored 13 counters.

At the end of the first quarter Vic led 6-5 and were still setting the pace at half time when they were on the long end of a 13-12 count by adding seven, the same number as Westglen, in a session in which Geddes proved to be Victoria's spark.

In the third Westglen came from behind to go ahead 18-15 and in the first part of the fourth Vic regained the lead and were leading by three points until a minute and a half to go. Bob and Jim Fleming then staged a rally for Westglen and chalked up the winning points, the former counting on two field goals and Jim adding a free shot.

Three Still in Running

New Club Will Represent Manitoba in Junior Playoffs

WINNIPEG, March 4.— (CP) — A club, new to interprovincial play-offs, will be Manitoba's defenders of the Dominion Junior Hockey championship this year. Three teams are left in the fight to keep the Memorial Cup in the province.

St. James Canadians, champions of the Manitoba South Division loop, eliminated Winnipeg Monarchs in three straight games of a best-of-five series while Winnipeg Rangers, Memorial Cup holders last spring, only won one game in 12 starts this season.

Canadians will meet either Winnipeg Maquires or St. Boniface Athletics in the provincial finals.

Esquires gained a two-one lead in the best-of-five North Division finals by defeating Athletics 10-5 Thursday night. Esquires won the opening encounter 5-4 and St. Boniface the second, 6-5 in overtime.

In Thunder Bay, Port Arthur West Ends and Port Arthur Flyers will meet in a best-of-three series, opening Monday, with the winner entering interprovincial Junior play-offs. The series also is the Lakehead League semi-final, the victor meeting H.M.C.S. Griffon for the league crown later. The Sailors will not enter contests leading to the Memorial Cup.

In the Senior Division, Manitoba will have no challenger this season for the Allan Cup. Thunder Bay representatives will be either Port Arthur Shipbuilders, an all-select sextet coached by Hugh O'Leary or Fort Frances All-stars.

Shipbuilders feature several former members of the Port Arthur Bearcats, including Norm Larson, formerly with Brooklyn Americans in the National League, Don Eaton, Waikko Kovisto and Stan Robertson.

Others expected to join the Shipbuilders are Peter Wyrot, Joe Gollat and Charlie Dunn, all members of the Fort William Canadian Car in the Thunder Bay War Workers League this season.

Southern Cal. League in Bad Over Raiding

SEATTLE, March 4.—(AP)—An official of the Pacific Northwest Ice Hockey League said Thursday night he had been advised that National officials suspended owners, players and clubs in the Southern California Ice Hockey League because it recently raided the northwest circuit of various players.

Al Leader, executive secretary of the northwest league, said he had been notified of the action by Phil Thompson, of Atlantic City, president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States.

Leader said the raiding of players from his league was done specifically by the Los Angeles club.

The players who jumped the northwest league for Los Angeles hockey included Goalie Stubby Mason, forwards Art Schuman and Flea Morrison of the Vancouver, B.C., Maple Leafs, and Goalie Bill Gribble of the Seattle (Boeing) Bombers.

Major and Miner Notes

By John Oliver

WITH the applause of a capacity, and highly enthusiastic audience ringing in his ears, and carrying far beyond the confines of the building, Jan Peerce, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Association, brought the 10th season of Celebrity Series concerts sponsored by the Women's Musical Club, to a conclusion at McDougall auditorium Friday night. It was a notable season. For the first time since the inauguration of the series it was necessary, resulting from exigencies of the war effort, to hold the concerts elsewhere than the Empire theatre. The effort put forth by those in charge of McDougall United church to make the auditorium a more attractive and suitable place for such events, bore fruit, and was greatly appreciated not only by the Women's Musical Club, but by the public.

As long ago as last June, four months before the series was opened by Mona Paulee, Edmonton-born mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan, every reserved seat was booked, thus testifying to the intense interest taken in the best music. Another feature was that it comprised seven concerts, six in the regular group, and an "added" attraction in the form of the Don Cossack Chorus. Last year the series consisted of five, and in no previous season had that number been exceeded.

Not only were all the reserved seats disposed of before the season started, but the "rush" accommodation was exhausted for practically every concert, and the size of the audiences was governed only by the ability of the auditorium to hold them. The standard of performance by the visiting artists was of the highest, and only one fell below the expected mark—and this for no good reason at all—so far as was apparent.

And what of next season? There is little to tell. Fred M. Gee, Winnipeg concert impressario, whose co-operation with the Women's Musical Club has been a major factor in building up the series, has not announced the artists, although it is expected such disclosure will not be long delayed. Your correspondent has heard some rumors from reliable sources as to the personnel to take part, but as confirmation has not yet arrived, we must content ourselves with waiting. However, if it so happens that the rumors are confirmed, then let it be said that next season's concerts will be on as high a plane as ever.

There are some indications that the Empire theatre might be available. It has been officially announced that as United States and other construction firms complete their contracts they probably will leave the area, as, also officially stated, there is little likelihood of further major construction taking place here in connection with the war effort.

While nothing has been disclosed as to the length of time the Empire might be required, on the face of the authorized statements, there is reason to believe that it will be available. Next season is far ahead. World-shattering, epochal events will take place before another Celebrity Series opens. But as music is one of the greatest morale-builders, it is good to know that preparations already are being made to provide this city with front rank attractions.

Russian music will be the subject of the final meeting of the year of the University Music Club to be held at Convocation Hall at 9 p.m. Sunday. Egon Graumnitz, violinist, with Mary Drummond Hallen at the piano, will play Tchaikovsky's Serenade Melancolique and Glazounow's Serenade Espagnole. Nelda Faulkner, pianist, will play two works, Prelude by Prokokieff and Rails by Debenchow. Naomi Wershof, soprano, will sing three songs, Notch Tcha by Kirilloff, and Tell Me Why, and an aria from Teharedieyka, both by Tchaikovsky. Prof. L. H. Nichols, university organist, will play two Rebikoff pieces, and Mussorgsky's Kieff Processional. Two excerpts from Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker Suite, Dance of the Candy Fairy, and Arab Dance, and an arrangement of Glinka's "Farewell Lark" will be played by the two-piano team of Lucille Cote and Francis Kilchen.

Betty Jean Hagen, violinist, will appear in recital at the Masonic Temple at 8 p.m. March 8, under the banner of Alberta College, and in aid of the Red Cross.

Betty Jean Hagen, 13-year-old violinist who will appear in recital at the Masonic Temple at 8 p.m. March 8, on behalf of the Red Cross and under the banner of Alberta College. Born here, she was 13 years old on Oct. 17, 1943. Before she was four, she had started piano lessons, and when she was seven, commenced the violin. Six months later she won first place in the elementary violin competition at the provincial music festival, and in the same year was awarded the Lucille Eagleson silver medal for the highest mark obtained by any student in her grade in this province in the Grade 6 Toronto Conservatory examinations. Her mark of 91 was the highest in any grade that year.

The next year she won first place in the primary grade violin competition at the district music festival. In the same year, through the efforts of Mrs. J. B. Carmichael, she obtained an audition at the Chicago Conservatory of Music, and was awarded scholarships in both piano and violin. She studied for two years at Chicago, and owing to the war she had to return here, and has been continuing her studies under city teachers for the last two years. When she was 11, she won second place in the under 23-years-old class in the district music festival, and last year she won second place in the under 16-years-old class.

Edmonton musicians figure prominently in the activities of the Canadian Federation of Music Teachers' Associations, of which Minnie Boyd, Winnipeg, is chairman. Officers of the organization are: President, Lyall Gustin, Saskatoon; vice-presidents, Reginald Cox, Victoria; Mrs. Gladys McKelvey Egberi, Calgary; Cyril Hampshire, Hamilton; Mrs. Edna Hawkin, Montreal, and Allan Vickers, Winnipeg. May James, Vancouver, is the past president. The committees, and Alberta representatives on them, are: Composers' division, G. A. Kevan, Edmonton; Mrs. Helen Boese, Calgary; performers' division, Mme. Jenny LeSaunier, Edmonton; Mrs. Mollie Hamilton and Leonard Leacock, Calgary; examinations' division, Mrs. T. Winslow Hamilton, Edmonton, chairman; Mrs. Chapman Clarke, Calgary, and Arthur Newcombe, Medicine Hat; mutual benefits, Mrs. T. Winslow Hamilton.

A new constitution adopted states two of the federation's objects, namely, to encourage "all movements designed to raise standards of musical education and training of music," and "to engage in any undertaking to promote the advancement of the knowledge and appreciation of music amongst teachers and, members of the public."

The Young Artists' Series of concerts sponsored by the federation, now in its third season, has presented 3 soloists in more than 50 recitals. The recital given at the Public Library, Macdonald Drive, last Sunday by Thelma Johannes, Saskatoon pianist, and Cathryn Zender, Edmonton soprano, one of this series, was an outstanding success, being largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed. Both artists displayed unusually fine musicianship, and gave promise of rapid development beyond the "young artist" stage.

Metropolitan Opera Association Tenor Scores Concert Triumph

Jan Peerce, tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Association, firmly entrenched himself as a front rank favorite with Edmonton concert-goers when he appeared in recital at McDougall Auditorium Friday night under the auspices of the Women's Musical Club. His appearance brought to a conclusion the tenth season of Celebrity Series.

It would be difficult to conceive, or imagine a more appropriate and artistic finish to a series, an ending that will live long in the memory of those whose good fortune it was to be present, and one that will make certain the opening of the next series will be awaited with interest.

The occasion marked Mr. Peerce's first visit here, as part of his first tour of the west. In a brief address just before his last encore, he said he hoped the audience liked him and if so, the feeling was mutual, and he hoped to come back again. His statement will receive widespread endorsation.

An outstanding artist even at the Metropolitan, Mr. Peerce gave a recital that will take its place as among the best ever given here.

He revealed extensive and highly-cultivated musical crafts-manship. His tremendous vocal resources were managed expertly, and in a manner that achieved maximum results at all times. Throughout a program, the exactitudes of which were manifold, he revealed dictional mastery in all languages employed and an authenticity in interpretation that brought forth the inner spirit and portent of the songs.

Thoroughly at ease and possessing an unspoiled, unaffected manner he was without any suggestion of the artificial pose too often apparent at vocal recitals.

His voice is of fine texture, admirable in tonal fidelity and quality, and has an extended range. He reduced the volume to a scarcely audible pianissimo, or produced a ringing forte with equal ease, and always with superlative control.

ON PROGRAM

The program opened with Torelli's Tu Lo Sai and this was succeeded by Durante's Danza, Danza, Fanciulla. Then came If With All Your Hearts from Mendelssohn's Elijah and Sound an Alarm from Handel's Judas Macrabeus.

The next group consisted of German lieder, Marx's Hay Dich Liebe Beruht, Kaun's Der Sieger, Schubert's Am Grabe Anselmos and Strauss' Cacilie.

All the while enthusiasm for Mr. Peerce's art was mounting, and by the time he reached the rewarding aria O Paradiso from Meyerbeer's L'Africana, he was so firmly entrenched with the audience that all he had to do was consolidate his position. This aria resulted in a volume of applause the equal of which seldom has been heard here.

Then came Respighi's Nebbie; Dupare's Soupir; Staub's L'Heure Delicieuse; Fourdrain's Carnaval; Rachmaninoffs The Dropping Corn and Floods of Spring; Levitzki's Do You Remember? sung twice, once to those in front, and once to those in the "rush" seats in the choir loft, and Gliditer's setting of Blow, Blow Thou Winter Wind.

Mr. Peerce was called upon to sing no fewer than seven encores, three of which were opera arias. The "added" pieces were Rossini's La Danza; Oley Speaks' Morning; Vesta La Giubba from Pagliacci; Eleazar's aria from Halevy's La Juive; Manna-Zucca's I Love Life; Victor Hely-Hutchinson's setting of Mother Hubbard, a la Handel and Le Donna e Mobile from Rigoletto. Alexander Alexay at the piano gave expert support to Mr. Peerce, and frequently was called upon to share the applause.—J.O.

I am showing only the North and South cards of today's hand, which is one of the best examples of counting tricks that I have run across in a long time. The bidding is somewhat optimistic. I like to open South's hand, but some of you may critieize it. Of course, we cannot blame North for getting into a slam on the hand.

The opening lead was won with dummy's queen of diamonds. Now would you lead the diamond king in order to discard the queen of spades? If so, you would not make the contract. Count your tricks. You have two club tricks and three diamond tricks. If the hearts break, you can make six heart tricks; therefore, you need a spade trick in order to make your contract.

You can lead a small spade and hope that West has the ace, but this does not seem likely in view of East's double of two diamonds That double should also tell you that East has a long string of diamonds Your first play should be to cash the queen of hearts. When both East and West follow, lead a low diamond and trump with the nine of hearts, hoping that West, who very likely had a singleton diamond, does not hold the jack of hearts. Then cash the ace and king of hearts, picking up the outstanding trumps, and lead the queen of spades, thus establishing a spade trick for the contract.

Says Bondholders Block Refunding

It is not the government of Alberta, nor the Social Credit caucus who do not wish to refund Alberta's debt, but rather it is the bondholders, A. V. Bourcier (SC-Lac Ste. Anne) declared in the legislature Friday, when he rose to speak in the budget debate.

Delivering one of the shortest formal speeches ever made in the house, the member spoke for seven minutes only.

On the refunding subject, he asked, "Why is it Manitoba can refund at two and three-quarters per cent, but Alberta cannot?"

Surely, Mr. Bourcier went on, anyone in his right mind would be willing to refund at such a rate. "It is not the government, and it is not our caucus, but the bondholders who don't wish to refund," he said.

The opposition side of the house seems to take the attitude that this government does not want to refund, the member continued. It has been charged many times with default and repudiation.

Alberta is the only province in Canada that shows a reduction in its debt today, Mr. Bourcier said. Every other province, and the Dominion included, show increases in their debt.

"Alberta is not refusing to pay" he told the house. "Alberta says it cannot pay the huge interest financial institutions ask us to bleed out of our people.

Final Short Course Programs Are Held

The jointly sponsored Chamber of Commerce and Department of Agriculture two day "Agricultural Short Course" concluded Friday with a program emphasizing cattle and dairy production.

Prof. J. W. G. MacEwan, of the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, told that cattlemen in this country should give consideration to processing some of their meats, particularly canning beef and dehydrating beef.

A wartime development, he said, dehydration and compression of meats in the future represents a great challenge to cattlemen. He urged greater herd efficiency and outlined the problems of the rancher, the commercial feeder and the farmer grower.

Earlier in the program, D. H. McCallum, dairy commissioner, department of agriculture, spoke on "Increasing the Returns to Milk Producers" and Dr. R. D. Sinclair, Dean of the Faculty of Agriculture, University of Alberta, spoke on "Swine Production Costs—Past and Present."

He pointed out that the two main items entering into the costs of producing hogs are feed and overhead aut outlined proposals for greater production efficiency.

Venereal Disease Hits Record Low In American Army

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP)—The venereal disease rate in the United States army reached a record low of 27 cases per 1,000 men or one man in 37 during 1943, According to preliminary figures, and the use of penicillin in extensive trials on gonorrhea is cause for celebration to the sulfa drug effected cures in 96 per cent of them.

Retreatment of failures in these gonorrhea cases raised the percentage of cures to nearly 99 per cent.

This is announced in the new bulletin of the army's medical department, which declared the low rate for 1943 for gonorrhea, syphilis and other venereal diseases compared with 38 per 1,000 men in 1942, 40.5 in 1941, and 42.5 in 1940.

THINK!

Because of the Canadian Red Cross, thousands who might have died, have lived. Think!

Thousands of men whose wounds might have crippled them for life have been made strong again because, at the crucial moment, the Red Cross was there. Think also, of that.

Thousands of fighting men . . . and women, and little children . . . have been spared unspeakable physical and mental suffering through the ministrations of the Red Cross. Think of that, too.

Above all, remember this: The greatest, most punishing battles of the war are being fought now. Demands upon the Red Cross . . . from battlefields . . . hospitals . . . dressing stations and enemy prison camps, pyramid from day to day.

Surely, the appeal of the Red Cross for money to carry on their crusade against human suffering will meet with nation-wide and immediate response.

Food Resources Offer Security Says Professor

"Except in periods of national emergency it may not be good for us to be entirely self-sufficient," J. W. G. MacEwan, professor of animal husbandry, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, said Friday at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon meeting in the Macdonald hotel.

"We cannot be self sufficient and trade with other parts of the world. If we are going to grow their food we must give them a job to do," he said. "Trade is a two-way traffic."

ROOM FOR EXPANSION

However, he added, "there is room for industrial expansion in this country. It may not mean manufacture of binders, but it should mean more food processing industries close to the source of supply, such as woolen mills, food hydration, tanning and leather manufacture, glue and vegetable oil extractions.

"We may see an expansion of manufacturing, but our resources for the production of human food so far surpasses any other resource we have, it should be fundamental in our thinking," he said.

Mr. MacEwan emphasized that agriculture people in Canada are primarily producers of human food and that they should become more conscious of their resources for the production of human food.

He stressed the necessity for the continuation and intensification of a diversified food production program. Such a program, he said, could build up a lasting agricultural program.

"More grass, less soil drifting, more livestock—more security," he said.

CAN SUPPLY SURPLUSES

If the people of the world are hungry for meat and milk, he continued, and we can supply surpluses, it is not too much to ask our governing bodies in Canada to lubricate the distributing machinery sufficiently so that these products are distributed where needed, he continued.

Mr. MacEwan urged western Canadian farmers to "shout more food, better food. It is their business," he said, "and they haven't been nearly vociferous enough about it.

"A high standard of living and a well balanced agriculture go hand in hand," he said.

Mr. MacEwan was introduced by Dr. J. P. Sackville, of the department of animal science of the University of Alberta. J. Paul of Namao, chairman of the agricultural section of the Chamber of Commerce, presided as chairman.

Included among those at the head table were: J. Paul; James Walker, first vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce; Dr. R. Sinclair, dean of the faculty of agriculture, University of Alberta; O. S. Longman, deputy minister, department of agriculture; H. J. Mather, superviser, conservation and weed control, department of agriculture; Provincial Minister of Agriculture, Hon. D. B. MacMillan; Dr. Sackville and Professor MacEwan.

Fusiliers Bugle Band in Annual Dinner, Reunion

Featured by a "bang-up" feed of army "chow" cooked and served in the best battalion style, the annual get-together dinner and reunion of the bigle band of the 2nd (Reserve Battalion, Edmonton Fusiliers was held Friday night at Victoria Armory.

More than 30 members, bugle bandsmen, attended, while guests included 30 members of the regimental cadets.

Bugles and drums were laid aside for the event, and although it was parade night, the only parade held was to the banquet table, at which the boys proved themselves just as efficient as they do when heading a Victory Loan march along Jasper avenue.

Drum-Major David Collister was chairman. Sgt. Leo Perrin whose culinary achievements are almost legendary in the battalion, was in charge of messing.

Maj. Fred W. Kemp, second in command of the battalion, was present and in a brief address lauded the contribution the bugle band has made to the regiment. He pointed out that the band always has been ready to assist in parades and gatherings for worthy causes.

Others present who spoke briefly were Capt. W. Hewlett; Capt. R. G. Hagen, M.M.; Lt. J. G. Fullerton; C. W. Richards; RSM. William Gordon, M.M.; Drum-Major Collister; RQMS. James Paton; SMI. H. C. Howell; Sgt. Perrin, and Sgt. Robert Dalgleish.

Miss Lucille Stewart of the extension department, University of Alberta, assisted by Donald Stewart, showed nine reels of film, including "Blow, Bugle, Blow," "The Arm Behind the Army," and "Wings of the Continent."

Community singing, games, and the recalling of experiences at camp and on parade, completed the evening.

Mrs. William Gordon, and Mrs. David Collister assisted.

Urges $100,000 Appropriation For S.C. Board

Replying to Independent party criticism of the Social Credit Board appropriation in the 1944-45 estimates, J. M. Popil (S.C., Redwater), said in the Legislature Friday that the vote should be increased.

"If people are to attain the control of the dollar bill, then the work of the Social Credit Board is enormous," said the member. "The appropriation should be at least $100,000."

On the subject of refunding, Mr. Popil said there is a feeling abroad "that nothing should be done to hurt the feelings of the bondholders—in other words, we should cater to them."

HELP BY CORPORATIONS

The member went on to say that he doubted if any poor people held provincial bonds. The bulk was being held by big corporations.

"No!" Independent party members interrupted.

"Yes!" Social Credit members retorted.

At the present time, the bonded indebtedness of Alberta stands at over $140,000,000, said Mr. Popil. To date, the people have paid on this sum in interest charges alone, close to $130,000,000. In a few years, this interest charge will come close to $140,000,000, and we will still owe the $140,000,000 principal, he continued.

Refunding will not solve the debt problem of the province, Mr. Popil told members. It would mean an easing up of the situation, but it is not the solution. "You can't borrow your way out of debt," he declared.

$130,000,000 INTEREST

Referring to the item in the estimates for $3,885,764 as charges (mainly interest) on the public debt, the member said he for one wanted to see it 'wiped out' entirely, in view of the fact that the people of this province have already paid close to $130,000,000 in interest on the $140,000,000 principal.

"I wouldn't give them one cent in any budget," the member declared.

No one can dispute the fact that the Social Credit government has the best record of any government in the Dominion of Canada, he told members.

Earlier, he twitted opposition members with the statement: "If the Independents ever get to power, it will be necessary to expand our mental institutions. If the socialists ever get into power, there will need to be an expansion of the jails."

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION:

What is your opinion of the C.N.R.-City improvement plan for area adjacent to the Macdonald hotel?

THE ANSWERS:

FRED JENNINGS, carpenter: As far as I can figure out it would appear to be a sensible plan. The idea of widening 100 avenue is a good one. With bus traffic heavy, and undoubtedly to be heavier as vehicles can be obtained this widening seems to me to be an absolute necessity. I also favor the idea of shallow-depth stores with the parking space at rear. A park would be an unsightly mass of dirty snow and waste paper for the majority of the months of the year.

HENRY HOPKINS, clerk: I cannot understand the upsurge of interest in the beautification of the Macdonald surroundings, any more than I can understand why it was ever allowed to lag. For years this has remained dormant, to be suddenly precipitated now when there is little chance of the improvements being made during the war. I am of the opinion that the plan outlined by civic officials is a proper one, and further beautification should be carried out through the landscaping of the river bank immediately south of the hotel.

WILLIAM MULDOON, salesman: Any plan that will remove the unsightly shacks that now stand on the Jasper avenue-100 street corner should be welcomed. I understand that taxes and rentals collected by the city from properties proposed as the park area amount to approximately $20,000 annually. This is a high price to pay for a park over the years. As an alternative I would suggest the landscaping and terracing of the river bank to provide the necessary down-town park spaces.

Roper Claims Firms Exploit Oil, Gas Lands

While the province of Alberta received in gross revenues from petroleum and natural gas resources the sum of $843,000 in 1942, it was reported in an eastern publication that 20 companies exploiting the province's petroleum and natural gas resources had a net profit of $3,022,955 in the same year, Elmer E. Roper (C.C.C., Edmonton), told the Alberta Legislature Friday.

Quoting from the publication "A Survey of Canadian Oils" published by the Financial Post, Toronto, Mr. Roper said that these 20 companies in 1942 had a gross profit, excluding allowances for depreciation, depletion, and development, of $6,934,901. The net profit figure, $3,228,955, made provision for these charges.

GETTING "FEW PENNIES"

The C.C.F. member said the province was "getting a few pennies out of the exploiting and development, while some large groups were getting millions."

He urged that a complete survey of all northern Alberta and relief cases in the province should be conducted, saying that those who are solely dependent on mothers' allowances are not getting enough.

Mr. Roper made reference to a return brought down in the House by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, which showed amounts being paid in mothers' allowances to widows with varying numbers of children.

While increases were shown, the maximum paid to totally dependent women was not enough, said the C.C.F. member. In Edmonton, he went on, a family of four (a widow and three children) received $50 a month. This is not enough, taking into consideration that it costs at least $25 a month to rent decent living quarters, and nearly $25 to feed, clothe and buy fuel for four persons.

On the matter of provincial relief cases, Mr. Roper said another return tabled in the House recently showed there were 7,000 relief cases in the province. This was quite a group, he added.

CITES WOMAN'S CASE

He told of the case of one woman, wholly dependent on relief, who was receiving the sum of $1.98 a week. When her case was brought to officials of the department, the allowance was raised to what the woman felt she should get. No such an appeal should have been necessary, said Mr. Roper. He told members there must be many of the type who prefer to "suffer in silence," rather than go after what they think they should have.

Discussing the oil question, the member said that losses were very few in number in that showed profit and loss statements. He told of one concern that reported a net profit of $132,759, and wrote off the sum of $445,697 for depreciation and amortization, thus showing a loss of $363,347.

In another instance, he told of a large company which showed assets totalling $6,117,480, and wrote off out of profits a total of $11,205,766, made up of $9,783,473 for depreciation, and $1,420,293 for depletion.

Landlords Seek Rules For Rentals

Declaring that the housing shortage in Edmonton is being aggravated by the present rent control under order No. 294 of the W.T. P.T.A., members of the Landlords' Protective Association at a meeting Friday night at the public library endorsed the circulation of a petition among property owners urging abolition of rent control as applied to housing.

The petition will be forwarded to Hon. J. L. Ilsley, minister of finance; Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce and M.P. for West Edmonton, and Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, M.P. for East Edmonton.

The decision to endorse the petition was reached after discussion which charged rent inspectors with unjust appraisal of city housing rentals, causing landlords to serve notice on scores of tenants and thus leaving many rooms and suites vacant in Edmonton.

There were about 150 members present at the meeting. H. W. Brooker was chairman.

Wife of Loyal Edmonton Regt. Officer Always on Hand to Welcome Veterans

By JACK DeLONG

Meeting trains as a morale builder? Sounds a trifle unusual, we'll admit, but there's a lot more to it than can be discerned at a glance.

To Mrs. J. C. Jefferson, cheery, attractive wife of Brigadier J. C. Jefferson, D.S.O., E.D., former Edmontonian now commanding a Canadian infantry brigade on the flaming front in Italy, meeting trains is an important factor in maintaining the morale of men overseas at a high level.

All trains bringing veterans home from overseas, particularly men who have suffered wounds, are met by the smiling Mrs. Jefferson.

ALWAYS ON PLATFORM

Be the hour early or late (and all trains with returning servicemen reach Edmonton either very early or very late), Mrs. Jefferson is on the station platform. The wounded are her chief concern. Cold weather never has stopped her.

Any lad with a crutch or cane or an arm in a sling or caste has Mrs. Jefferson at his side in a jiffy.

Her car is at the disposal of every returning hero that can be crammed inside for as long as desired.

She drives them to their homes if they are fortunate enough to have homes in Edmonton and she will remain parked outside a snack bar or refreshment parlor for long stretches, while the homecomers enjoy refreshment.

But it's the lads from district points, who must break their journey overnight in Edmonton, who gain the greatest attention from Mrs. Jefferson.

MRS. J. C. JEFFERSON

Generally there's no one to meet these veterans when they reach Edmonton. And they feel very keenly about it as a rule, even although they are not voluble about their disappointment.

Mrs. Jefferson ascertains that all such she can contact at the depot have places to stay over night. And she drives them to their overnight stopping places.

EDMONTONS "FAVORITES"

Any returning veteran is certain to be heartily welcomed by Mrs. Jefferson, but homecoming members of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment are apt to secure just a little extra in the way of attention.

Of course the reason for this "preference" is obvious if you are aware that it was Mrs. Jefferson's husband who commanded the 1st Bn. of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment through the bitter fighting for Sicily and later during many of the hard battles in Italy.

It was for gallantry in action while leading The Loyal Edmontons that Brig Jefferson was awarded the Distinguished Service Order, pinned on the Edmonton officer's tunic by none other than the former famed commander of Britain's magnificent British Eighth Army, General Sir Bernard Montgomery.

Brig. Jefferson left Edmonton with the regiment in the fall of 1939 as a major in command of a company.

To Mrs. Jefferson therefore, meeting the trains bringing wounded heroes home is in the nature of a duty willingly and gladly performed.

Recently she explained things to a representative of The Edmonton Bulletin as follows:

"It started with the first men who returned from the fighting front. I had decided to meet a wounded man from the Loyal Edmonton Regiment with whom I personally was acquainted.

"When I met the train he wasn't on it, but I saw others who were

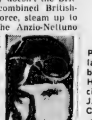
Air Power

Popular Anxiety Over Riddles

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

There are some aspects of the present military picture that baffle the American mind, I judge from the persistence with which certain types of questions are being asked in different parts of the country. This dispatch is written in the course of a lecture tour and the writer is confronted with such queries everywhere.

People, for instance, pose conundrums such as this: Since our Navy is able to take strongly defended points in the Pacific with such seeming ease, why doesn't the British Navy, or a combined British-American naval force, steam up to the beaches of the Anzio-Nettuno sector to give continuous support to our beachheads?



de Seversky

Or they ask: Now that aircraft carriers can attack and destroy air power on an island like Truk why don't Allied carriers steam up to Wilhelmshaven, Kiel or other such coastal towns in Germany and give additional fighter support to American bombers attacking these cities?

Our Navy apparently can roam the Central Pacific at will. Why doesn't it sail boldly for Yokohama, Asaka, and Tokyo, and bomb them into rubble? The Japanese navy presumably is not a real barrier, since it has been unable to come to the rescue of Truk and other islands under attack.

It is generally conceded that the American Navy is roughly twice as strong as the Japanese navy. Its spokesmen, indeed, underline this fact by continually "daring" the Japanese to "come out and fight." Why, therefore, do we not simply pursue that inferior navy to its hiding place and end the agony?

NO LONGER SECRET

Popular anxiety over such riddles is all to the good. The nature of modern warfare is such that it has ceased to be the exclusive province of professional military men. It is no longer a trade secret. Victory requires not only the total resources and labor power of a nation, but the direct moral and intellectual participation of every man, woman and child.

This is especially true in democratic countries, where public opinion is like a speed governor in a machine. It is the device that regulates speed of progress, whether in political or military affairs. An enlightened public opinion is what keeps individuals vested with great power from running too far ahead of the people; or accelerates the speed when leadership lags.

In wartime it is essential that this "governor" be adjusted to maximum speed. Hence it is desirable that Americans understand the character of the new military conditions, and a favorable sign that they are asking intelligent questions. The more clearly the public understands the reasons for military actions—or failure to act—the better.

The common denominator in most of the questions I have found, is confusion about the new factor in this war as compared to all former wars, namely, the factor of aviation. Because the public has obtained its news and military explanations almost exclusively from army and navy sources, which are themselves none too clear on the new relationships among weapons, the confusion has been inevitable.

ONE NEW PRINCIPLE

Thus all the questions cited above can be answered substantially by reference to one new principle of war-making. I refer to the fact that naval forces—and that includes aircraft carriers—cannot approach shores that are adequately defended by first-rate land-based aviation.

Our naval forces do approach the shores of Pacific islands. This does not contradict the principle. Those islands happen to be too small to accommodate sufficient land-based aviation to deny us access to surrounding waters. Though we can approach the Marshalls or Truk, it would be suicide to attempt this against the Philippines, Japan proper, or other great land masses capable of supporting large-scale air power.

Our carriers are unable to steam up to German coastal areas to give fighter support to our Liberators and Flying Fortresses because those coasts are shielded by Hitler's land-based aviation. No matter how many carriers we used, and regardless of how powerful an escort of battleships we gave them, the defending bombers would sink the "floating bases" and strand their complements of airplanes.

We cannot conceivably engage the Japanese navy in combat as long as that navy remains under the roof of its land-based air power. If we possessed not twice but 10 times as much naval power as the enemy, we still could not venture within bombing range of hostile shore-based aircraft. The elimination of such air power is the first and indispensable condition for naval action inside Japanese waters on any except a hit-and-run basis.

Similarly, our virtual Allied monopoly of sea power in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic does not mean that we can steam up to the shores for offensive action. As long as Fortress Europe is guarded by a formidable Nazi Luftwaffe, we can use that sea power only beyond the range of Hitler's land-based airplanes. The best we can do is to land reinforcements and supplies under cover of bad weather, make surprise attacks, or operate under the protection of our own land-based air cover where geography permits it.

In the interests of clarifying public opinion on this key factor, it is to be hoped that naval spokesmen in the future will be more explicit than in the past in explaining why we are held back despite overwhelming naval superiority.

Warns Hungarians "Game" Dangerous

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—The Moscow radio in a broadcast last night warned Hungarian authorities they "are playing a dangerous game" and "when the hour of reckoning comes they will get what they deserve." The broadcast, reported by the office of war information, said the capture of Hungarian infantrymen, tank crews and airmen by Soviet troops belied statements by Budapest that Hungarian troops are not engaged in front-line fighting against the Russians.

Grain Elevators At Head of Lakes Are Being Filled

FORT WILLIAM, March 4—(CP)—In preparation for the opening of Great Lakes navigation, when the heaviest movement of grain in the history of the trade is expected, terminal elevators at Fort William and Port Arthur are rapidly being filled.

Stocks were low at the close of navigation, but yesterday there were more than 53,409,235 bushels of all grains in lakehead elevators with the golden stream pouring in at a rate of 600 cars daily from western elevators.

Most of the present movement, ranging from 10 to 12 grain trains a day, is of wheat. There are more than 300,000,000 bushels of wheat in storage.

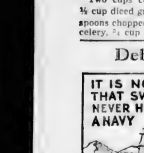
Debunker



It seems absurd now to think of a navy for a country so far from any oceans; yet Switzerland once had a good navy and kept it on the Swiss lakes for several hundred years. There were warships which could deal a bad volley into any towns along the shores.

THESE WOMEN!

"Why can't YOU enjoy yourself, Joe, dear? Everyone else is having a grand time!"

Use top units on an electric stove in rotation for the same reason you change the tires on your car occasionally—they wear more evenly. Most people favor one unit—do you? For the same reason it's a good idea to switch the lids on a coal or wood range from time to time. Those directly over the fire box bear the brunt of heat and work and cracked lids are difficult to replace nowadays.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Most mothers refuse to recognize their own mistakes, especially as it has to do with their children's bad habits. What every mother must recognize is that it is the nature of children to be animated and if she inhibits that animation the child will pursue his activities in the form of habits having to do with the body such as thumb-sucking, ear-pulling, the whole long list of them.

Mrs. A. isn't quite as unique as she thinks she is for she could hardly have done otherwise. We have to put children in playpens unless we are willing and able to watch them every waking moment.

She writes: "My 14-months-old baby daughter has been a bed-rocker since her eighth month. Now she has started to bump her head. I believe both bad habits are my fault because I left her alone to play in her bed and playpen by the hour. She never cried to be picked up and seemed perfectly happy. I didn't notice when these habits started. Now she rocks on her hands and knees night and day either when hungry or sleepy.

"Her food has always been given in the kind and amount prescribed by good baby schedules. Her weight is normal. She eats well except when a tooth is coming. She doesn't require much sleep, it seems. I am now trying to keep her awake all afternoon and feed her at 5 p.m. I am hoping that without a nap she will sleep all night. This is my last resort."

Don't feel that way. You weren't aware, because the baby was happy wherever you put her, that she needed exercise out of the pen, and confinement in the bed only when she was ready to go to sleep. But, as she pursues her habits only when sleepy or hungry you have it within your power to end both of those situations when they arise. It isn't wise to keep your baby at all afternoon. She can be on a three-meal schedule and sleep from 12 to 3. Or, if you use the baby-nap plan, the long nap can be from 10:30 a.m. to near 2 p.m. In either case the baby should go to bed right after the supper bottle.

Be critical of her menu, especially the vitamin D, for this helps deposit nourishing calcium in the nervous system as well as the bones and teeth. Notice signs of fatigue and put the baby down and stand by her bed to discourage bed-rocking or head-bumping. Give her the loving calmness her interest until she is asleep.

Give her ample opportunity to be physically active when she is awake and I believe she'll cease, shortly, to indulge these habits of lulling herself to sleep.

Our leaflet, "Nervous Habits," discusses the various kinds of habits children develop. It may be had by sending a self-addressed 4-cent envelope to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper, requesting it.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Modern Women Want Four More Freedoms

Girls Today Ask for Liberty in Love, Economic Independence, Physical Comfort and No More Babying Husbands

Speaking of the Four Freedoms, here are the four freedoms that women would like to have:

First, they would like to be free to pick out their mates. They would like to have the right to do their courting openly and freely, unhampered by conventions, and when they saw a man they fancied as a husband to be able to say: "John, dear—darling—will you be mine?" Of course, in reality, as a general thing, the women are the pursuers instead of the pursued in marriage, but, even so, no one can deny that it cramps the husband-hunter's style to have to stalk her prey under cover and to camouflage her every move. Also it enables many a man to escape into bachelorhood who would otherwise be a happy husband and father.

Were women free from this handicap of not being able to pop the question, it would make for more and better marriages because it would enable them to put up a good selling argument that would make many a man see that a sensible, domestic girl is a better matrimonial proposition than a living picture. Likewise, it would give every woman her heart's desire in a husband, instead of having to take what she can get. And a contented wife is a good wife.

Second, women want economic freedom more than almost anything else in the world, and the reason there are so many bitter, dissatisfied, disgruntled wives is because so many domestic women are frustrated in this desire. There are plenty of wives of even well-off men who never have a dollar of their own that they can spend as they please. The first money of their own that many a married woman ever has is her husband's insurance money, and perhaps that is the reason there are so many reconciled widows.

BEAUTY CULTURE

The third freedom that women would like to have is to be free, as men are, to be even as Nature made them. If a man is bald, he is bald, and what of it? If he is fat, he is fat, and who cares? If he is intelligent and interesting and a gentleman and successful in his undertakings, nobody bothers about his looks. But, no matter if a woman has all the virtues under the sun, she is expected to throw in beauty and dress like a manikin, besides.

Nobody can imagine a bald-headed girl being the belle of a ball, and for his wife to get old and fat is still a husband's alibi for roaming. What women suffer in trying to keep young and beautiful would make another Book of Martyrs. And there is no privilege that they would enjoy so much as being able to let out their corset strings and eat mayonnaise and be their age.

The fourth freedom that women crave is to be able to treat their husbands as reasonable human beings and not to have to jolly them, or baby them, or cajole them along the matrimonial pathway. But no wife ever expects that to happen. She doesn't even hope to ever be able to handle her husband without putting on her velvet gloves.

Room 11, the Grade 12 class led the War Savings Stamp Drive for the month of February, with a total of $53. The same group headed last month's drive. Next in line were Room 15, a Grade 10 class, with $35; Room 12, a Grade 11 class, with $33.75. The grand total for the school was $223.50 for the month.

The Lit which was to be held Friday was postponed, but will be held next Friday afternoon with the usual hilarious entertainment which characterizes Commercial "Lits".

The boys' basketball team, under the supervision of Clare Hollingsworth, is getting in shape for a game against St. Joseph High, which is scheduled for Tuesday. Another game against Victoria will take place soon.

VARSITY
By Jeanne Gould

The '44 graduation class held its first meeting this week and officers were elected. Joyce Perkins is president, Eileen Reynolds is secretary-treasurer, and H. E. Tanner honorary-president. The executive committee consists of Nan Mac. Queen, Alwyn Scott, and Garth Fleet.

We are looking forward to the next edition of the school paper, the "Torch", which will appear about March 20.

This year a very efficient house league hockey has been worked out and now the finals have been reached. The two top teams are under Chris Cairns and Bill Tye, and playoffs began Wednesday, when the game ended in a tie. The best-of-three series continued Friday. High scorers in the league are Bob Hall, with 32 points, and Chris Cairns, with 30.

Varsity High congratulates the Scona Drama Club on the party given last Friday. We feel that such events will further an interschool spirit and hope that other schools will follow suit soon. Varsity High's contribution to the program was three numbers from our forthcoming operetta, "O Doctor", and these added music and enjoyment.

Preparations for the operetta are in full swing.

VICTORIA
By Dolores Kimball

On Thursday, March 1, a nickel drive was held in aid of the Red Cross. The students rallied enthusiastically and contributed $70 in nickels. Room 7 won the interroom competition with $9.65; Room 4 was second with $6.45.

The senior girls' basketball team played against Eastwood on Thursday and emerged the victors by a lead of 28-22. At present Eastwood holds top position in the league. Further basketball news is that the senior boys played against the Westglen team for the Northern Alberta championship on Friday in the Eastwood gymnasium.

War stamp pennants were awarded to Room 20 and Room 12 for top stamp sales during the month of February.

STRATHCONA
By John Macdonald

After nine days of selling stamps the school reached the $1,621 mark in the current War Savings Stamp drive. This amount exceeded expectations and any quota set by our or any other school. Room representatives strove to have their room first in the competition. Room 14 finally won and Pat Cormick won first prize for the best hit parade. A great deal of credit is due the Students' Union as almost all sales were to students.

Monday Feb. 21, the graduating class met to pick its executive for 1943-44. The executive includes Mr Ainlay, honorary president; Don Mackay, president; Dorothy Smith, vice-president; Shiela Leslie, secretary; Calvin Chambers, treasurer; Dick MacDonald, valedictorian; Helen Steele, historian.

On Friday Feb. 25, a dramatic evening with other drama clubs of the city was held in the auditorium. Numbers were presented by Victoria, Eastwood, Varsity and Strathcona.

The senior boys' basketball team was defeated Tuesday by Westglen by a score of 33-11. This puts our team out of the city league.

ST. MARY'S
By Nora McGannon

Our biggest interest at school last week is our undefeated basketball team. St. Mary's girls won four games in the last month defeating Scona, 13-8 and 20-7, and Normal, 20-8 and 22-10. Stella Noel, the captain of the team, is our high scorer with 34 points and Mary Hegarty, president of the Students' Union, has 28 points. The whole team is really on its toes. The games were exciting and the large number of students who attended them were well rewarded for their support.

Any person going into our library at noon must be prepared to buy a war savings stamp. A booth is set up there and each day some member of the war savings committee sells stamps. They have a remarkably persuasive way with them and almost before you know it you are the possessor of one or more war savings stamps.

WESTGLEN
By Jack Gibbons

The Westglen senior basketball team defeated the Scona team 33-11 in a semi-final game played at Eastwood Tuesday. Excitement accompanies the approach of the final and decisive game to be played with Victoria.

The Badminton tournaments are progressing according to schedule. Jocelyn Simpson and Marg Weir were the victors in the girls' doubles and Jim Wood and Jocelyn Simpson in the boys' and girls' singles.

A stamp drive undertaken by the Booster club has a self-imposed objective of $300.

Ralph Young of the Y.M.C.A. spoke Wednesday to the Swing Club urging their co-operation in forming a "teen-age" club.

EASTWOOD
By Susanna Alexeeff

The E.H.S. girls' basketball team suffered its first defeat of the season last Wednesday, when it was defeated by Vic 27-23. The game was played at Eastwood, and many of the Eastwoodites turned out, cheering the team on with their school yells. On Eastwood's team, Evelyn Macormick was the high scorer with 8 points. Others who scored for Eastwood were: Violet Mercer, 6; Shirley Smith, 5; Barbara Lelten, 2; and Eileen Schuster 2.

The third edition of the Gazette was published last Wednesday. Plans for the graduation dance are beginning to take form. The pins and rings committee stated that an order had been put in for the required number of pins and rings.

Cadets Writing Series of Tests

By Jack Day

With a large part of the air cadet training already behind, the cadets are writing examinations preparatory to taking up new work. Cadets of the junior squadron, having completed their aero-engine course, have written the final examination. Results will be announced soon.

Meanwhile, in the senior squadron, a number of signals tests have been given. The two cadets who received the highest marks in this subject have been awarded a special prize. The cadets were required to take Morse code at seven words a minute speed, and Aldis signalling lamp at four words a minute. Still another test facing the senior squadron is the final examination in aircraft recognition.

Aircraft recognition is one of the most important subjects on the syllabus, and has been studied ever since last spring. The cadets have to be able to identify within the space of one second any enemy or friendly aircraft presented on the projection screen. A very high standard of proficiency is maintained in this art.

W. I. in Northern Alberta

By MRS. HUGH J. MONTGOMERY—Box 514, Wetaskiwin.

Meetings of the Council of Alberta Women's Institutes were held recently in the Palliser hotel, Calgary.

Reports showed an increase in membership, a good financial status, and a splendid amount of war work accomplished. Donations included $1,500 to the Navy League for sweaters; $1,200 quilts were made for the Navy League and Red Cross. Thousands of knitted articles and refugee clothing for Greece, Syria, and the Near East, tributed, and money was donated to the Russian, Greek and Chinese relief funds, as well as the Queen's Canadian fund. Contributions were also made to the Prisoners-of-War fund.

In addition, the usual attention has been given to social welfare and community enterprises.

The Institute paid tribute to the Alberta Government for its recent legislation introducing free maternity hospitalization. The first resolution concerning medical inspection of schools, originated in the Alberta Women's Institutes and it was in response to an appeal by W.I. members that the first travelling clinic was sent out in Alberta.

A keen interest in post-war problems is evidenced throughout the institutes, and the members are working together in harmony under definite leadership. They are accepting responsibility to study needs, acquire and distribute information and to plan ways to help all citizens to better living, all of which is given in voluntary service.

KANATA

Meeting at the home of Mrs. E. Oswald, members made a quilt for the Red Cross. Conveners of standing committees were appointed and plans made for program.

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

There's silvery ice (use BLUE and light BLACK with a touch of light GREEN where there are lines left by the skaters on the white icy pond) on the pond, and all the girls and boys are out on it. Their cheeks, noses and chins are as RED as Jack Frost can paint them.

BROWN-haired Teddy and YELLOW-haired Susie Shay are skating around and around in GREEN knitted cap with bands of ORANGE color (use RED and YELLOW mixed) on it, and an ORANGE color tassel to match. He has his BROWN coat with big YELLOW buttons on, and GREEN mittens and leggings with small YELLOW buttons.

Susie May wears a RED tam o'shanter and a RED coat trimmed with GRAY fur. Her mittens and leggings are white. She has BLUE eyes.

Freddy is in the foreground with his long BROWN hockey stick and wears a plaid sports coat. The coat has a thin BLUE stripe, three thin BROWN stripes and YELLOW squares in between. His cap matches his coat. His gloves are RED.

Betty has taken a tumble. Her PURPLE hat trimmed with little YELLOW flowers has fallen off. Her hair is REDDISH-BROWN (mix RED and BROWN). She has on a PURPLE coat. Her leggings and shoes are BROWN.

Tommy tried to save Betty, but you can see he is having a hard time to keep himself from tumbling right on top of her. He has a RED and GREEN striped sweater. His trousers are BROWN, so are his shoes and stockings.

They all have skates on. The skates are GRAY-BLUE (mix the two colors). The girls have TAN (YELLOW and BROWN mixed) straps on their skates.

The sky is BLUE with a few little white clouds. The pond is a boat pond in the summer time, so you can see a part of the boat-house. The roof is RED and the porch and steps are YELLOW.

One can see a few everGREEN trees and tall GRAY trees on the edge of the pond. There is a GREEN bank too, by the side of the little BROWN path on the snowy white bank.

The border is GRAY and the lettering RED.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. No trouble at all. Or you can use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.
Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist, put it into a 16 oz. bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of really excellent cough medicine. It's thrifty, too—about four times as much for your money. And children take it willingly, because it tastes so good.
This home mixture takes right hold of a cough in a way that really satisfies. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Eases the soreness, and lets you rest at night. Pinex is a concentrated compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, mixed with pure pine balsam. Finland Suffers Due To Flagrant Errors Made By Leaders of Past 3 Years

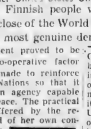
This is the thirteenth of a series of articles by Sumner Welles, former United States Under Secretary of State, which appear exclusively each week in The Edmonton Bulletin.—EDITOR.

By SUMNER WELLES
Former United States Under Secretary of State

After the Finnish people won their independence from Russia at the close of the World War, they succeeded in building one of the most genuine democracies of modern times.



Sumner Welles

Their government proved to be a consistently co-operative factor in every effort made to reinforce the League of Nations so that it might become an agency capable of maintaining peace. The practical demonstration offered by the republic of Finland of her own conviction that no ordered international society can long continue unless it is based upon the sanctity of the pledged word became proverbial.

Real democracies composed of a decent, hard-working and honorable citizenry, primarily desirous, in their foreign policy, of furthering the establishment of an effective and co-operative world order, and otherwise minding very much their own business, were few and far between in the period between the great wars. That is one reason why the people of this country have felt a very real and persistent sympathy for the people of Finland in the tragic predicament into which they have been forced by successive governments during the last three years.

IN HITLER'S NET

It is notorious that both before and after the first war between the Soviet Union and Finland, halted by the armistice of 1940, many political leaders in Finland were enmeshed in Hitler's net. Officials like President Ryti and Finance Minister Tanner, often functioned as if they were hypnotized by Hitler and Ribbentrop. They grossly miscalculated. They were convinced that Germany would win. What was a still more egregious blunder on the part of responsible statesmen, they were deluded into believing that a Hitler-conquered world Finland could enjoy real freedom.

The outcome of the deal between the Finnish government and Hitler resulted in the occupation by Germany of the chief strategic areas within the republic. The consequence in 1942 could not have been more grave to vital interests of the United Nations. The defence by the Soviet Union of her northern reaches, and in particular of the Leningrad area, was seriously threatened. Supplies of war material from the United States and Great Britain to the Soviet Union by way of the northern route were in constant danger of being shut off. The bland assertion of the Finnish government, after it found itself at war with both the Soviet Union and Great Britain, that no offensive against the Russian armies would be undertaken from the territory of Finland was hardly as mollifying as the government of Finland seemed to think it should be.

The Nazi machine intrenched itself rapidly within the Finnish administration. Only a short time passed before the Finnish Foreign Office, the information services and the police bureaus were replete with Nazi agents.

This government, most wisely, I think, notwithstanding increasing provocation, continued to maintain official relations with the government of Finland. It did so for precisely the same reason which has guided the Soviet government in continuing to maintain relations with Bulgaria after that country declared war upon the United States and Great Britain. In view of the extremely close relations which have existed between this country and Finland throughout the independent life of the Finnish Republic it was believed in Washington that the advice of her traditional friend might, upon occasion, check the overnment of Finland from undertaking a course of even greater subservience to Hitler.

REPEATED PLEAS

Since midsummer of 1942 this government has repeatedly exerted itself to persuade the Finnish government to withdraw from what the government of Finland attempted to insist was its private war with Russia, and to sever its special ties with Germany. It has made every possible effort to pave the way so that negotiations for peace might take place directly between Moscow and Helsinki.

The failure of these friendly efforts can in large part be laid squarely at the door of those officials in the Finnish capital who failed to keep their Parliament fully informed of the representations made by the United States. The legislative representatives of the Finnish people were unable to learn the whole truth. Owing to German influence in the censor's office the people of Finland were never permitted to obtain the full realization of the dangers into which they were being led.

Now at last, with the latest Russian offensive, even the present Finnish government has seen the handwriting upon the wall. It is forced to recognize that German defeat is inevitable. The current negotiations in Stockholm are the result.

In Juho Paasikivi the Finns possess their most realistic negotiator. He has long since seen that Finland's future can only be assured if relations between his country and the Soviet Union are established upon a co-operative basis. The Soviet Minister to Sweden, that brilliant and able figure, Alexandra Kollontay, is believed, notwithstanding her long illness, to have helped to bring the negotiations about. While the prospects today seem discouraging, an armistice may be forthcoming.

FINNS LEARNING TRUTH

Quite apart from the military significance of such a development, the countless friends in this country of the Finnish people will hope for such an outcome.

The people of Finland at last know the situation in which they find themselves. They must realize that they should no longer postpone the day of reckoning for the flagrant errors of their leaders.

Stalin has repeatedly shown the realism of his statesmanship. It is not necessary for us to insist that a free and democratic Finland, governed by a truly representative government, will in the future offer greater security to the Soviet Union than would an unduly restricted Finnish people lastingly resentful of the treatment now accorded them.

The continued liberty and independence of the Republic of Finland are of major importance to the United States. In the post-war years the people of Finland can be, as they were in earlier years, constructive and co-operative partners in the task of creating a better and a more democratic world.

Morrison Says:

Allies To Get Into Europe And Destroy German Army

SHEFFIELD, Eng., March 4.—(CP)—Home Secretary Morrison said last night that there will be no more Dunkirks.

"This time there will be no mistake about the outcome," he said in a speech. "We mean to get into Europe, to get at Germany, to take the German army by the throat and shake the life out of it.

"We mean to be done for good and all with the German general staff, the German military tradition, the German lust for power, and the German habit of aggression."

The home secretary said that "the ordinary British soldier in all wars has won an historic reputation for his ability to hang on, as he has done for the last four years, and then when the enemy has exhausted himself, to leap to the attack with full force."

The recent German raids on London, though not comparable with the German performances of 1941, had been quite bad enough, he said, "and there have been a few episodes comparable with the worst single incidents of the big blitzes."

Morrison said that 50,324 British civilians have been killed by bombs, and 163,015 have been injured.

The strategy of dropping metal strips to confuse the enemy's detection devices was developed for the R.A.F., he said, and after adopted by the Germans, but "they save more of our bombers than they can of the Luftwaffe, and they have saved very many of our bombers and their precious crews."

Bank Charter For Alberta Is Discussed

The question of a provincial bank charter was brought up on the floor of the legislature again Friday when Premier Hugh John Macdonald, K.C. (L., Edmonton) spoke in the budget debate. Mr. Macdonald claimed that in the province's application for a charter in 1940, all provisions of the Bank act had not been complied with.

Hon. Lucien Maynard, K.C., attorney-general, challenged this statement immediately, and a lively exchange between the two members followed.

Mr. Macdonald told the house that the Dominion had stated it was prepared to facilitate granting a provincial bank charter, when all requirements of the Bank act had been complied with.

The attorney-general replied that Alberta's application was rejected by Ottawa, on sole grounds that it was unconstitutional. It had not received further consideration, he added.

"You did not comply with all the provisions," said Mr. Macdonald.

"NOT ISSUING SHARES"

Mr. Maynard: "We were not issuing shares to the public, and could not comply with the provisions as to shares."

Mr. Macdonald: "I say you did not comply with the provisions of the Bank act."

Mr. Maynard: "I say we did."

Discussing post-war development, Mr. Macdonald said that if this province is to take its place in the post-war world, it will require the development and training in the provinces and in Canada of a great number of scientists, drawn from all sections and all classes of society.

He criticized the operation of the government treasury branches, saying that the $2,000,000 "thrown away so recklessly" in this program could have been used in part for scholarships.

The Social Credit board simply renders publicity service to the Social Credit party, said Mr. Macdonald.

Sugar Shortage Of 3,000,000 Tons Seen This Year

TORONTO, March 4. — (CP) — Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy told the Ontario legislature yesterday there is an expected 3,000,000-ton world shortage of sugar this year and stressed that Canadian sugar-beet farmers are making a large and direct contribution to the war effort.

Speaking on second reading of his sugar-beet subsidy bill, Mr. Kennedy said that was one of the reasons why the Ontario government was raising the subsidy to sugar-beet farmers from $5 cents a hundredweight to $1.55 for the year ending March 31, 1945. The other reason was that the Dominion government had declined to give any assistance to the sugar-beet industry.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "I read to you last night. Tonight it's Sister's turn to choose what we'll do and she wants me to color paper dolls with her. I'll give you some paper and crayons, too."

Mother: "You color your pictures by yourself, Sister. Jimmie wants me to read to him and he's the littlest, you know. Don't fuss about it! You should be glad you have such a sweet little brother."

Being the youngest member of the family should not exempt one from learning to consider others.

Charges C.C.F. Tried to Avert Call-Up of Men

REGINA, March 4.—(CP)—A. C. Stewart, U-Yorkton) charged in the Saskatchewan legislature yesterday that members of the C.C.F. had "improperly interfered" with the call-up of men in the Saskatchewan division of the mobilization board.

Mr. Stewart named M. J. Coldwell, national C.C.F. leader; G. H. Castleden, member of parliament for Yorkton, and M. H. Feeley (C.C.C.-Canora), in his charges.

Mr. Coldwell, Mr. Castleden and Mr. Feeley endeavored to interfere with the operation of the board to prevent the call-up of men," Mr Stewart said.

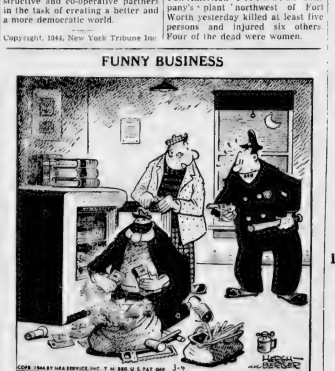
Blast Kills Five

FORT WORTH, Tex., March 4.—(AP)—A series of explosions at the Pan-American Fireworks Company's plant northwest of Fort Worth yesterday killed at least five persons and injured six others. Four of the dead were women.

FUNNY BUSINESS



"Nothing to worry about, officer—I'm breaking him in with stage money!"

Look Jimmy—from the RED CROSS!

Who said we were 'Out of it'?

IMPRISONED by the enemy—out of the battle, yet still with a fighting soldier's heart—compelled to wait on the side-lines of the war for the duration—surely such thoughts must be the greatest hardships our prisoners of war have to endure. Broken hearts can hurt worse than broken limbs.

To such men, in 1943, went six-and-a-half million dollars worth of Red Cross parcels. In them were more than food, comforts. To each harassed soldier these parcels were reminders that their loyalty and the courage they displayed were not forgotten.

The need for Red Cross parcels has grown to staggering proportions. This need must be met by contributions from the men and women in Canada.

Let response be immediate and generous. Give money for this work of the Red Cross—work which must be done—and which can be performed by no other organization.

Member Complains Little Is Spent on Forest Resources

OTTAWA, March 4—(CP)—Hon. Earl Rowe (P.C., Dufferin-Simcoe), speaking on agricultural estimates in the commons, yesterday said less than one-half of one per cent. of governmental expenditure is on the nation's forest resources despite the economic importance of forestry.
Agricultural Minister Gardiner interjected that forests should be discussed on mines and resources estimates but Mackenzie King (Prince Albert) said the agriculture estimates did include phases of forestry.
Mr. Rowe said he intended to recommend "constructively" that forestry insect control be taken away from the agriculture department and put under the resources department.
Mr. Rowe was ruled out of order by Deputy Speaker J. Bradette.

Real Estate Is Popular Topic Conversation

By RALPH W. TREASURE
Of W. C. Rowe and Co.

Real estate is one of the most talked-of and talked-about topics of conversations today. One reason for this popularity is the scarcity of living accommodation. Not only is this the case here, but all across Canada the situation is the same. The activities of the rent control board have had a lot to do with this.
The original orders of this board were so stringent that something had to be done. This could not be done by the property owners themselves, as they lacked organization. The real estate agents had only their own local organizations, which lacked the power a national association would have. Accordingly, when the national association of real estate boards was formed, the Edmonton Real Estate Association was one of the first to join the larger body, as its aims and objects were identical with our own ideas.

RESULTS ACHIEVED

Some results have already been achieved by the larger body, one of which is the shortening of the length of time required to be given a tenant in the event of his house being sold. Some subjects to be taken up by the national association are of interest to every property owner. They are, post war housing; town planning, the Veterans Land Act; municipal tax structure throughout Canada, as it relates to the burden borne by real estate, and the growing amount of annual taxation.
All members of the Edmonton Real Estate Association have to live up to a code of ethics, which assures the client of a fair and proper handling of his deal. These members are well established, have reputations of which they are proud, and, on account of the length of time they have lived here are qualified to give fair and just valuations on property. They are all trying hard to eliminate the flyby-night, shoddy, and cutthroat realtors, so that the real estate profession may take its rightful place on Canadian business.
A. A. Whyte, of Whyte and Co. and Stuart Darroch, both prominent Realtors of this city, are representing our association at the National Association of Real Estate Boards Convention to be held at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, on April 3 and 4.

Realtor

Ralph W. Treasure, of the real estate firm of W. C. Rowe and Company, who on Saturday stated that the real estate situation is one of the most talked of matters before the public today.

King Uncertain Of Parley Date

OTTAWA, March 4. — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King said yesterday in answer to a question in the Commons he was not in a position to say whether the Dominion-provincial conference will be held in Easter week, starting April 9. Pensions Minister Mackenzie said the Dominion Council of Health will meet during the next six weeks or two months to discuss as many as possible of the departmental national health proposals with the provincial governments represented.

Boys Are Found

Two youths, 13 and 14 years old respectively, one of whom had been reported to city police as missing from his home, were found in a downtown office building about 12 p.m. Friday. The boys told officers they were hiding. They were returned to their homes.

Wife of Officer Always on Hand To Welcome Vets

returning. There was one fellow with a crutch, limping along. He was apparently from out of town, and there was no one to meet him.
"I thought right then how terrible it is for a wounded man to come home with no one to welcome him.
"I asked him where he was going and found his home was outside Edmonton. He needed a place to stay the night. A soldier told me of the Salvation Army Servicemen's hostel, so we drove there.

GIVEN HEARTY WELCOME

"Right now I would like to say how great it made me feel to see how the little, elderly man in charge at the Salvation Army hostel greeted that wounded soldier. He grasped the soldier by the hands and said: 'Welcome home!' in such a wholehearted manner. I'm sure it made that soldier feel good.
"Another day, it was very early in the morning, when a young fellow got off the train with his arm in a plaster caste. There was no one to meet him either. I feel sure that the people of Edmonton are doing a whole lot to keep up morale overseas when they welcome and assist the young fellows coming back.
The boys returning now really need help. I think another great thing for boosting morale of the men overseas is to give assistance promptly to families of returned men who happen to be in difficulties of one kind and another.

TRIBUTE TO LEGION

"I would like to pay a high tribute to the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Legion. I have found the Legion ready and eager to give assistance in everything that will benefit returned men or their families. The Legion has been truly wonderful," she concluded.
The home front unit of the Jefferson family seems to have a morale-building system of merit.

Labor Progressive Party Convention

First annual convention of the Labor Progressive Party of Alberta opened in Edmonton on Friday morning at the Imperial hall. Delegates from 100 points throughout the province were present.
Speakers at the preliminary morning session were: Eleanor Ashworth, party candidate for Peace River provincial constituency; Tom Mackie, candidate for Drumheller, and Ald. E. W. Horne of Medicine Hat, provincial secretary, who acted as chairman.
John Stokaliuk, vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America, District 18, also spoke.
The policy of the Alberta organization was outlined for discussion purposes at the afternoon session, by the party's provincial leader, James A. MacPherson.
"Food for Victory and Agricultural Reconstruction," was the main point of the party's legislative platform as outlined by Mr. MacPherson.
Other points in the Alberta policy discussed were economic development of Alberta, industry and post-war opportunity, education plan for youth; health of the people; social security for all; demobilization and rehabilitation; modern housing and town planning; civil rights and constitutional reform.
Many resolutions covering these points were on the agenda for discussion.
The Sunday sessions reports of the party's activities throughout the province will be given by Margaret Mills, provincial organizer.

"Elusive" Blaze

NEW YORK, March 4—(AP)—Two firemen were overcome and a whole city block of them were confused yesterday fighting a number of fires that weren't there. The blaze broke out in the air-conditioned dressing room of a dress shop. Firemen spent precious minutes futilely breaking a fruitless pair of mirrors before they were able to concentrate on the real thing.

TORONTO, March 4—(CP)—The Canadian Automotive Electric Association yesterday elected H. R. Welch of Ottawa president for the coming year. Directors include E. L. Loveseth, Edmonton, and H. N. Boulbee, Vancouver.

Trading Is Slow On Chicago Mart

CHICAGO, March 4—(AP)—Firmness in rye imparted some strength to other grains today, but trading generally was slow and price changes narrow. There was some short-covering in rye and those bullishly inclined on the grain were still hopeful that it would be used in industrial alcohol production.

Moisture was received over a wide area of the winter wheat belt, further improving the outlook for the crop. The government was said to be in the market for a small amount of flour and mill feeds but there appeared to be no general renewal of government buying.

At the close wheat was ⅛-⅜ higher than yesterday's finish, oats were ¼-⅜ higher, and rye was unchanged.

Wheat—May 1.71; July 1.67½-⅝; Sept. 1.65¾; Dec. 1.66⅛.

Oats—May 80¾; July 77⅛; Sept. 73⅞; Dec. 74½.

Rye—May 1.28-128⅛; July 1.27½-¼; Sept. 1.25¼; Dec. 1.26½.

Barley—no trading.

No cash wheat; no corn; no oats.

Barley malting 1.25-1.44½, nominal.

Rye Futures Close Higher in Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, March. 4—(CP)—Rye futures closed ¾-1½ higher today on the Winnipeg grain exchange after a hesitant start. The May option finished at $1.29⅛, July $1.27¼ and October $1.25½.

Traders attributed the advance to increased local buying near the close. No wheat export business was reported during the quiet session.

Livestock

EDMONTON LIVESTOCK

Weekly report from the Edmonton stockyards for week ending Mar. 3:

Receipts	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Today	140	8	132	89
Week	2026	110	1521	240

Trading was fairly active on heifers and cows throughout the past week, but slow on heavy and in-between butcher steers. Receipts were fairly liberal, consisting largely of plain to medium kinds. Far too many of this particular class arrived for the good of the trade, but salesmen expect to make a fair cleanup. The bulk of the good steers sold from $11 per cwt. down. Really good butcher steers, however, would likely bring more. Good to choice heifers traded from $10 to $10.50 and one load realized $11 per cwt. Good light cows were mostly from $7.50 to $8, with heifery kinds realizing $8.50 per cwt. The bulk of the bulls sold from $5 to $7, with a few heavy bulls topping $7.50 per cwt.

The following are the quotations:

CATTLE—

Good-choice fed calves	$11.00	to 11.50
Good-choice h'y steers	10.75	to 11.50
Fair-medium steers	9.50	to 10.50
Common to fair steers	6.50	to 9.50
Good-choice heifers	10.00	to 10.50
Fair-medium heifers	8.25	to 9.50
Common-fair heifers	6.50	to 8.25
Good-choice light cows	7.50	to 8.00
Good-choice heavy cows	7.00	to 7.50
Fair-medium cows	6.00	to 7.00
Common to fair cows	4.50	to 6.00
Canners and cutters	3.50	to 4.50
Bulls	5.00	to 7.00

Stockers and feeders under limited demand. Good steers sold from $8 to $9, with a few topping $9.50. Stock heifers from $8 down, and good stock cows from $7 down.

Veal calves were firmer under very light receipts. Good to choice handy weights mostly from $11½-$13, with extreme tops at $13½. Heavy and common kinds from $11 down to a low of $7.

Lambs, unchanged. Good to choice handy weight, $10.25-$10.75; tops off cars, $11.25; yearlings $6.50 down, and good light ewes $5 down.

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, March 4—(CP)—Scattered liquors and specialties performed on the recovery stage of today's stock market while many leaders loafed in the wings. Schenley jumped about 3 points to the best level of the year. White Rock made a new 1944 top. Hiram Walker-Gooderham and Worst shot up 1⅛.

Wherever Help Is Needed
The Red Cross Is Standing By

To give that help, in adequate quantity, requires co-operation and support from every Canadian, support to the tune of $10,000,000.00.

That is the job to be done by us at home for the boys "Over There".

It's a job of construction rather than destruction . . . of rebuilding and saving Canada's finest resources, her young manhood.

It's a job of shipping survival in the form of food parcels, to Canadian prisoners in enemy concentration camps. From many escaped prisoners we have heard that they depend on the Red Cross parcels for food to keep them alive.

It's a job of providing medicines, bandages, anaesthetics, dried blood plasma, surgical supplies for those who have suffered on the fighting fronts.

It's a job of making available to the boys such little pleasures and comforts as mobile kitchens, tea cars, etc., can provide.

All those and more, are jobs facing the Red Cross in this war . . . and only through the efforts of an organization such as the Red Cross can those jobs be done. But they will be done only if there is whole-hearted, generous, immediate financial support from YOU of Canada's civilian forces. The amount required urgently to carry on is $10,000,000.00 . . . and that must be forthcoming in this present Red Cross campaign for the sake of Canada's magnificent fighting forces.
